BANDITS AND YEGGS, OPERATING BOLDLY, OBTAIN LARGE SUMS

Chicago Cafe Yields $5,000;
Cleveland Club
Is Robbed

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Three fashionably dressed bandits today burst into the Brauer Cafe in Lincoln Park, cowed the two owners and manager with their revolvers and escaped with the week-end receipts of $5,000.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Safecrackers broke into the Lotus Gardens Restaurant, a popular downtown dine and dance establishment here today and escaped with $2,647 in cash and stock certificates valued at $3,000, police said.

The robbery was discovered when the resort was opened for business by Hong Art, an employee. Neatly wrapped in packages, the money represented part of the receipts for the week-end business, Charlie W. Tend, manager, informed police. Nearly $2,100 additional in cash was overlooked by the robbers, he said.

The bandits entered the restaurant from a side street entrance to avoid being detected, police said. They broke the locks on four doors in an iron grating before reaching the safe.

Office of the restaurant were wrecked by the blast which had been used to force the door of the safe.

Lotus Gardens is the newest and most elaborate of several downtown Cleveland night clubs.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 3.—Three masked bandits held up the headquarters of the Yellow Taxicab Co. here early today and escaped with $2,400 in cash after lining up eight employees against the wall.

The bandits took a cab standing in front of the office and raced to their own car several blocks away.

PARTY GUEST DEAD; RUN OVER BY AUTO

AKRON, O., Aug. 3.—Guests at a farmhouse party near Manchester, O. were to be questioned by attorneys at the county prosecutor's office today regarding the circumstances which caused the death of William Murphy, 45, who was killed by an automobile in the driveway at the farmhouse.

Deputies were informed that the machine, driven by a fellow guest at the party, passed over Murphy's body while he was lying in the driveway. He died a short time later.

Thomas Edison Steadily Improving After Sudden Collapse On Saturday

Inventor Expected To Recover From Present Illness

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 3.—The condition of Thomas A. Edison, who is seriously ill at his home in Llewellyn Park following his unexpected collapse on Saturday, "seems to be steadily improving," it was stated in a bulletin issued shortly before 10 o'clock this morning by the noted inventor's personal physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe.

The bulletin read as follows: "Mr. Edison had a good night. He slept seven hours. He is in excellent spirits and is taking more interest in outside affairs than he has for many days. His condition seems to be steadily improving."

"Dr. Hubert S. Howe,"

Policemen were assigned today to guard all approaches to the Edison estate. Traffic in the vicinity was diverted.

Edison is under the care of three physicians, Dr. Howe, Dr. Frederick M. Allen and Dr. William R. Williams.

A bulletin issued shortly before midnight by Dr. Howe, said:

"Mr. Edison has had a good day and is now retired and resting comfortably. His condition remains satisfactory and in all probability he will have a comfortable night."

Dr. Howe, however, said the aged inventor—he is 84—was in serious condition and only after weeks of care would he be able to return to work, if at all. He said Mr. Edison's condition was "very serious" but there was no immediate danger of death and that he might make a complete recovery.

At the same time, Dr. Howe said he doubted that the inventor will "ever be out of danger."

He disclosed that the inventor's collapse on Saturday was due to his curtailment of his diet to relieve a stomach disorder believed to be due to gastric ulcers. He also is suffering from bright's disease and diabetes, but both these, he said, were under control.

Dr. Howe said he believed Mr. Edison had not been nourished properly for some time because he insisted on a diet consisting largely of milk.

Edison himself disagreed with his doctor and told his son, Charles, he felt "105 per cent better."

A dietitian, as well as a day and night nurse, were in attendance.

During Sunday Mr. Edison got up several times and walked around but soon returned to his bed.

A crowd of reporters surrounded the Edison home and given word of the inventor's condition last night and today.

Hundreds of calls were received at the Edison home concerning the aged man's condition and he received telephone calls from his old friends, Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone.

All of the Edison family were present, except a daughter, Mrs. Oser, who was to arrive today from Norwalk, Conn.

Hopes for Mr. Edison's recovery were held high by his friends, who recalled he had gained his health from what was feared would be a fatal attack of pneumonia two years ago.

At that time he surprised everyone by sitting up in bed and smoking a black cigar.

Dr. Howe revealed that the inventor, "keenly interested in chemistry," had called him to his bedside to ask "questions about chemical analysis in his own case."

PLANNED FUNERAL

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—A few funeral arrangements were being made today for Gus Johnson, 45—just a few.

When he committed suicide yesterday, Johnson lay down in a brand new casket and started strutting a harp just after he opened the jets of a gas stove. Johnson, who was a janitor, had attained himself in his Sunday best. He had spent $235.47 arranging his own funeral, even going so far as purchasing a cemetery lot.

The women, prosecutors said, informed the grand jury that three-fourths of their earnings were handed over to the syndicate higher-ups. They testified, it was said, that this money was split equally between Al Capone, his brother Ralph, and Jake Guzik.

There she does a column called "Dear Diary," a day-by-day account of the adventures of a young girl in this great American metropolis. Her feature is so human, so appealing and so true to life that it has earned her a wide reputation.

She is not new to serial writing, having had other successes published with beautiful illustrations. It is good not to weather reading these days when it is so warm all over the country. Watch for it.

FACE MURDER TRIAL FOR BOMBING

As soon as Mrs. Mabel Cline, 43, above, and Mrs. Mildred Chambers, 21, below, alias Mildred Cline, her daughter-in-law, are able to leave the Birmingham Ala. hospital in which they are recovering from injuries received in a motor accident, they will be arraigned for their pleas to first degree murder charges. They are accused of manufacturing a bomb which killed two persons and wrecked a large pasteurizing plant which was engaged in a price war. Since Alabama has no law governing conspiracy to crime the women must stand trial on murder indictments. Three men also are under indictment in connection with the crime.

POLICE BELIEVE ARRESTS NEAR IN GANGLAND CHILD SHOOTING

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—New clues today led police to say they believed arrests were nearing in the gangster killing of a child and the wounding of four other children.

A statement of an eye-witness to the shooting of the five children while they played in a street last Tuesday evening and discovery of a shotgun, a pistol and some whiskey in a tenement house across the street from the scene of the shooting encouraged police to announce: "We feel we know who the gunmen are and we're sure we will eventually break the case."

Special squads of policemen patrolled the district where the shooting occurred and it was reported the threat of deportation would be used against witnesses refusing to talk. A concerted drive against criminal aliens of the section illegally in this country was also launched.

Scores of protests against the shooting of the children were voiced in pulpits on Sunday and demands were raised to drive all gangsters and racketeers from the city.

Police said they hoped to establish that one of the guns found in the apartment near the scene of the killing was used in the street shooting. Giovanni Grimaldi, owner of the five story tenement where the firearms and whiskey were found, said the apartment had recently been vacated by a tenant who had lived in it for years.

He denied any knowledge of the crime, but was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing August 11 on a charge of owning firearms. He was also held under $500 on a second charge of prohibition law violation.

The eyewitness statement was given to police after a young man telephoned and said he would talk if his identity were kept secret. He was questioned for three hours and gave valuable information, it was said.

ELEVEN LOSE LIVES IN AUTO ACCIDENTS ALONE OVER SUNDAY

Five Toledoans Die; Heat,
Drownings, Take
Heavy Toll

By I. N. S.

With Toledo reporting five fatalities to top the list, automobile and train accidents, heat prostrations, drownings and suicides in Ohio took at least eighteen lives over the week-end, a survey by International News Service showed today.

Automobile accidents reaped the greatest harvest of victims, the survey showed. Eleven of the eighteen fatalities were caused from injuries received in automobile smash-ups.

At Shelby Wesley Seidell and his wife were almost instantly killed when they drove their automobile into the path of a Big Four passenger train. The approach of the train it was believed, was hidden from the view of the Seidells by a driving rain.

The five traffic victims at Toledo were: Louis Ring, 40; Hubert M. Woods, 40, of Perryburg; Jennie Noel, 24, negro, of Fremont; an unidentified man about 40 and Arba W. McGinley, 61, of Toledo.

An East Toledo youth, Lawrence Stockmaster, 22, was drowned while bathing in a pool at Defiance.

A 20-year-old husband was drowned trying to save his 19-year-old wife when she fell into the Scioto River near Columbus.

The husband, Peter Ballotti, ran from his car and leaped into the river but drowned almost at once before he could not swim. His wife, Helen Ballanger Ballotti, was rescued by John Roy, who had accompanied the Ballottis on a fishing trip.

When her car was thrown into a ditch, Mrs. Hazel West, 28, of Chillicothe, was killed, and two men companions were injured. Howard Miller, 21, and John Willison, 25, of Washington, C. H., were injured. They were driving from Washington, C. H., to Chillicothe when their machine was sideswiped by another auto.

An inquiry was under way today into the death of William Murphy.

FAILURE TO CHANGE PROHIBITION LAWS OF STATE CLAIMED

Parties Should Drop Wet
Cause W. C. T. U.
Statement Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Both Republican and Democratic parties will be "strongly dry in 1932," it was claimed today.

If national political leaders "heed the results of the wet drive in forty-one state legislatures that met this year," the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union announced today.

The dry organization boasted that the campaign to "smash prohibition state by state is a fizzle." It declared every movement to repeal state prohibition laws had ended in failure and chided the wets for confining their efforts to either petitioning congress for repeal or passing "non-mandatory referenda" which have no effect on existing law.

"If national political leaders heed the results of the wet drive in the forty-one state legislatures that met this year, both the Republican and Democratic parties will be strongly dry in 1932," the union announced. "The campaign to smash prohibition state by state is a fizzle. Nothing was repealed or modified—not even a medicinal liquor law."

"The fate of the wet drive this year convinced the W. C. T. U. that political misfortune lurks in repeal or modification. Nearly 7,000 state legislators, fresh from the people, met this year; considered 115 wet measures, and adjourned without modifying or repealing one line of any prohibition law."

The dry organization said the legislatures have adopted only eleven wet measures, all confined to six states. These measures, it related, merely called for referenda on prohibition or asked congress to do something about repeal, but did not touch local enforcement acts. Five of the eleven were adopted in New York state, the others in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

"Wet measures in these states do not encourage national candidates to run on wet platforms," the union added "especially when it is realized that wet leaders in wet Connecticut and wet Rhode Island were forced to abandon the adoption of non-mandatory resolutions. The New Jersey wet legislative program failed completely."

"It appears to the W. C. T. U. that the drive against prohibition has turned into a device for stalling non-mandatory smoke screen referenda under which small time politicians can run for office and avoid discussing their real qualifications."

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—Harry Burnette, 37, former Glouster businessman, attempted suicide here today by drinking iodine, according to police reports. Rushed to St. Francis Hospital, Burnette's condition was reported to be critical.

ROUND WORLD PLANE IN SIBERIAN CITY; TOKIO PLANE IN AIR

Lindberghs Rest In Manitoba; Routes Cross At Nome

By I. N. S.

Airplane motors whirled in widely scattered portions of the globe today, marking man's tireless conquest of time and space.

Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., round-the-world fliers seeking to break the record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, landed at Khabarovsk in Siberia according to word received in Tokio.

Reg Robbins and Harold Jones, the Texas airmen, were believed well on their way to Tokio after a successful refueling at Fairbanks, Alaska.

At Churchill, Manitoba, an out of the way Hudson Bay Trading Post, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh waited to take off for Baker Lake, the next stop on the leisurely vacation flight to Tokio of Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Russell Boardman and John P. Landis, success New York to Istanbul fliers, continued studying a flying route further into the Orient, with definite plans still to be announced.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 3.—The Texan manned monoplane "Fort Worth" today was believed well started on its dangerous dash over Bering Sea on the last leg of its non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokyo.

Although neither the "Fort Worth" nor its tri-motored refueling ship had been sighted here, it was believed that Reginald Robbins and Harold Jones, pilots of the Tokyo bound plane, had taken advantage of better flying weather south of here and followed the southern shoreline for Norton sound to the sea.

TOKYO, Aug. 3.—Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn, American round-the-world fliers, brought their red monoplane Miss Vespa down on the landing field at Khabarovsk, Siberia, at 3:50 p. m. (1:50 a. m. Columbus time) today, according to a message from Khabarovsk.

Khabarovsk, on the Amur River, was the last scheduled stopping place in Asia for the world fliers. They had made the 1,900 mile flight from Chita, west of Lake Baikal to Khabarovsk in eighteen hours and twenty minutes, having hopped from Chita at 5:30 p. m. yesterday (10:30 a. m. Columbus time). In this time they flew over some of the wildest and most inhospitable territory of the world.

After a brief halt at Khabarovsk for refueling the fliers planned to push on across the sea of Okotsk and Bering Sea to Nome, Alaska, their next scheduled stop.

ROBBERY SUSPECT SHOT, CAPTURED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Believed to be one of three youths who held up and robbed a storekeeper of $40, a young giving his name as Spencer Dixon, 17, was shot twice in the left shoulder and arm today by Philip Muloff, a confectionary store owner, according to police.

The youth was taken to Charity Hospital, where attaches said he would recover.

Dixon, who was identified by Nathan Pollack, the holdup victim, as one of the robber trio, denied any connection with the robbery, police said. Muloff, summoned by Pollack's wife, fired five shots at the fleeing robbers as they fled down an alley. A police radio cruiser found Dixon lying a block from the scene of the shooting.

OIL INDUSTRY GLAD AS PRICES BOOSTED

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 3.—Another note of optimism for the Pennsylvania-Oil industry was sounded today when the second price boost in as many weeks was announced here by the Joseph Seep purchasing agency.

National Transit was boosted fifteen cents per barrel to $1.70; Southwest, fifteen cents to $1.55; Eureka, fifteen cents to $1.45; and Buckeye fifteen cents to $1.30.

Coincidental with this announcement, the Tidewater Oil Co. posted fifteen cent per barrel increases in the Allegheny and Bradford fields, bringing the price to $1.95 per barrel.

COWES REGATTA RACE CALLED OFF

COWES, Eng., Aug. 3.—Today's race on the programme of the Cowes regatta was cancelled this morning when King George announced the withdrawal of his yacht Britannia.

The king withdrew the Britannia because one of the members of her crew was swept overboard and drowned when a wave struck the yacht early today.

Former Spy, Monk

Ignatius Tribich Lincoln (above), former member of the British Parliament and war-time spy, has been made a Buddhist monk at Peiping, China. His name is now Chao Kung and 12 circular scars on his shaven head indicate he has gone through the painful burning ceremony which is intended to prove a candidate for the Buddhist priesthood has become dead to all pain. Lincoln was arrested in New York in 1915 as a spy. He escaped but was recaptured in 1916, following which he was extradited to England.

Dorothy Popp (above), 18, was crowned queen of Rumanian beauties in Chicago and is now impatiently awaiting the national Rumanian beauty contest which will be held in Detroit Labor Day. She has high hopes of winning the coveted title of the most beautiful Rumanian girl in the U. S. and thus capture the prize trip to her native land.

MEN MUST BE SLAVES TO FASHION!

Whether it's man's modesty or just his stubbornness, the clothes he wears these stifling summer days average five pounds heavier than those which cover members of the weaker sex. T. M. McKown of Chicago finds to his dismay that his street clothes weigh six and three-quarter pounds, while Virginia Green seems happy to learn that she carries only a pound and three-quarters of "excess baggage." Maybe some folk would say that's not enough.

Likes 'Em Big

The new S. S. President Hoover of the Dollar Line, heralded as the last word in American ship construction, is shown proudly sailing up New York bay to her pier for the first visit to Gotham after being commissioned. The ship sails on her maiden trip 'round the world Aug. 6. Captain Fred Anderson (insert), veteran skipper, is in command of this newest $8,000,000 floating palace of the American Merchant Marine. The President Hoover is the largest American-built liner and will accommodate 1,260 passengers.

X-RAY MONKEY FOR DIAMOND RING

Memories of stomach pumps probably will prove stronger than the glitter of diamonds in the future, for Jackie, pet monkey, owned by Mrs. Gertrude Dennis, Inglewood, Cal. When Mrs. Dennis recently missed her $750 diamond ring, she rushed Jackie to a hospital and an X-ray revealed the ring in his stomach. He returned home later, wiser but hungrier. Photo shows, left to right, Nurse Marie Steel, Mrs. Dennis and Dr. Dean, with Jackie on operating table.

Probe His "Idea" Hath Music Charm for Cows?

Since Chicago appointed an official greeter, Frank B. Lacy (above) has developed a supplementary idea which he thinks is great, but which the State's Attorney is not so sure about. Frank's scheme was to conduct an unofficial, but supplemental city greeting service, the crux of which is entertainment of visiting tired business men by beautiful party girls. Apparently the proverbial T. B. M. aren't going to get a break.

That music hath charms to soothe the savage breast is well known, but whether modern jazz will supply Bossy with the incentive to produce more milk is a mooted point. Whether or not to speed up the championship milking contest with jazz at the Los Angeles County Fair is being put to the test at Pomona, Calif., during preparations for the event, which opens in September. Lucille Gates, the violinist, is endeavoring to get the bovine being milked by Ruth Decker to produce more milk as music smites her ears. If this test is successful, a band will play for the milking contest finals.

Mrs. Forest G. Hurley and infant son John David, Oaklawn Apts., S. Detroit St., left Saturday evening for Newcastle, Pa., to spend a month with relatives. Mrs. Hurley's sister, Miss Katherine Reynolds, who has been visiting here, returned to her home in Newcastle with them.

Miss Clara O'Brien, Hill St., is enjoying a two weeks vacation from her duties as bookkeeper at the Criterion clothing store.

Mrs. W. H. Mc Gervy, E. Second St., who has been confined to her home several days because of illness is now improving and is able to be up and around the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Harner and daughter, Miss Jane Harner, W. Church St., are expected to arrive home the latter part of this week after spending several months on a European tour. They left London Wednesday relatives have learned. Mr. Harner was a delegate from the Xenia Rotary Club to the international Rotary convention in Vienna in June.

Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Messenger and two sons, N. King St., are leaving Tuesday morning for Ruggles Beach, near Vermillion, O., to spend a week.

Police Chief and Mrs. O. H. Cornwell and family, E. Second St., arrived home Sunday after spending two weeks on a vacation trip. They spent a week at Waterbury Resort, Indian Lake, and another week on a motor trip in northern Ohio.

Annual reunion of the Walton family will be held at Shawnee Park Sunday. All relatives are invited to attend and are asked to bring well-filled picnic baskets. Mr. John Walton, Spring Valley, is president of the reunion association.

Mrs. W. R. Sayrs and son, Donovan and daughter, Elleen, Norwood, O., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Munger and family, Dayton Pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Breakfield and daughter, Louie June, Cincinnati Ave., left Sunday by motor to spend two weeks in Washington, D. C., New York City and Atlantic City. They were accompanied by Miss Mary Katherine Swindler, Wilmington.

Mr. Charles Heaton, Cleveland, former Xenian, spent Saturday here visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. D. W. Cherry, E. Main St., has been removed to her home from McClellan Hospital where she underwent an operation two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harphart and daughter, Dorothy Belle, Clifton, spent Sunday with relatives in Greenfield.

Dr. Austin M. Patterson, vice president of Antioch College, was removed to his home on N. King St., Saturday from McClellan Hospital where he underwent an operation several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Swigart and son, Charles, Troy, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Swigart, Clifton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ault, near Clifton, have as their guest this week, Miss Gladys Baker, Dayton.

Mrs. M. M. Kester and daughter, Miss Imogene Kester, are moving Wednesday from 223 S. Detroit St., to the Flynn Apts., E. Second St.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Mitchell, E. Church St., and Mr. and Mrs. James Siders, W. Second St., have had as their guests Mrs. H. H. Hunnicutt, Long Beach, Calif., and Dr. and Mrs. Cecil Hunnicutt and Bobby Leinberger, Los Angeles, Calif. Mrs. H. H. Hunnicutt is the mother of Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Siders and Dr. Hunnicutt is their brother.

LLOYD GEORGE GAINS LONDON, Aug. 3.—The condition of David Lloyd George, Liberal leader and former wartime premier of Great Britain, continued to progress satisfactorily today, according to his physicians.

GIRLS ROUT BANDIT DETROIT.—George Walters, 37, can thank his two bottle tossing daughters for saving him from possible death at the hands of a youthful would-be bandit. The youth entered Walter's grocery store and robbed the cash register of $87. He ordered Walters and his two daughters, Mildred, 16, and Mary, 13, against the wall. Before a shot could be fired, the sisters swung into action with bottles on the store's shelves as ammunition. The bandit fled.

SENTENCE TWO HERE FOR DRIVING AUTOS WHEN INTOXICATED

Two autoists, pleading guilty to operating autos while intoxicated, were each fined $100 and costs, sentenced to thirty days in jail and had their driving rights revoked for six months by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Monday morning. Both drivers were involved in minor traffic mishaps.

The motorists, both arrested Sunday by police, were Frederick Hartsock, 27, R. R. No. 1, Xenia, and John Ballard, 50, of 8 Elm St. Hartsock's car, police say, collided with a traffic post at "Five Points." He was fined $100 and costs and given a suspended thirty-day jail sentence for carrying concealed weapons last June 10. Ballard was arrested following a collision with an auto of L. S. Barnes on Fairground Road.

PLEADS GUILTY, FINED Charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, Charles Ellison, 24, of 3 Owens St., was fined $25 and cost and committed to jail in default of payment by Judge Smith. He pleaded guilty.

FORMER XENIAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Funeral services for Mrs. Eugene O. Barr, former Xenian, who died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rosebloom, Washington C. H., Thursday morning, were held at her parents' home Saturday afternoon and burial was made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

Mrs. Barr was the wife of E. O. Barr, former mathematics and manual training instructor at Central High School here. During their residence in Xenia they lived on Hill St. For the past four years Mr. and Mrs. Barr had resided in Middletown where Mr. Barr taught manual training in the high school. Mrs. Barr had been in ill health for some time but had been taken to her parents' home only a day previous to her death.

Besides her husband and parents, she is survived by a brother, Glen Rosebloom, Sabina.

HURT WHEN THROWN FROM AUTO'S SEAT

Clarence Baumber, 45, this city, is confined in McClellan Hospital suffering from painful injuries received in an automobile accident on one Upper Bellbrook Pike early Sunday afternoon. He is suffering from a slight concussion of the brain, a broken nose, wounds on the face and cuts over his entire body.

Baumber was riding on the seat of a "make-shift" automobile and is said to have fallen off the seat when the machine struck a bump in the road. Name of owner and driver of the automobile was not learned. Baumber was rendered unconscious at the time but regained consciousness after being removed to the hospital.

FOUND LOVE, LOST IT, FOUND IT AGAIN

In this flippant age Natalie Dudley is an unusual young girl. Serious about love, she falls hopelessly for the "man of her dreams." Chance nearly gives him to her, but ironical fate steps in to snatch him away and she despairs of winning him back. What happens to her? For the answer read Ethelda Bedford's new serial story, "Broadway Bride," the best newspaper serial romance of the year. It begins tomorrow in the Gazette.

XENIA'S WHITE WAY LIGHTING SYSTEM LAUNCHED SATURDAY

Xenia's new White Way street lighting system flashed on at 8:25 o'clock Saturday.

Although it inaugurated a new era in the progress of the city, introducing metropolitan illumination methods to Xenia's business district, there was no ceremony connected with the change.

Employees of the Dayton Power and Light Co., had lowered and removed the overhead intersection lights Saturday, clearing the way for the new system. As darkness enveloped the city Saturday evening an employee in the company's sub-station here, threw a switch that turned on the lamps in the fifty-two new boulevard lights along Main and Detroit Sts.

Bringing mid-block illumination to the city, Xenia Saturday night presented the brightest appearance in its history. It represented a far cry from the days when "lamp posts" last lighted the city, being illumined by gas lamps atop iron standards at the street corners. The new boulevard lights are on tall standards that allow for a range of reflection that eliminates "dark spots" between lights. The new lights attracted favorable comment from the usual Saturday night shopping crowd.

New four-way traffic signal devices were placed in effect Friday and operated Saturday and Sunday with motorists gradually becoming accustomed to them. Many, forgetting the lights, ran through red signals, but there were no arrests as police permitted drivers to become acquainted with the new system.

BANDITS WHO ROB MAN, STRIKE WIFE

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Struck over the head with the butt of a revolver when two thugs robbed her husband, James Murphy, of $235, Mrs. Emma Murphy was reported recovering at her home today.

Confronted by the two robbers as he drove into the garage at the rear of his home, Murphy handed over the money while his wife was slugged as she attempted to get out of the car. Angered by the attack on his wife, Murphy ran after the car in which the bandit pair was escaping and was fired upon by one of the robbers. He was uninjured.

SEVENTEEN DAYS IN JULY SHOW MERCURY READINGS OVER 90

Rumors that the weather was distressingly warm during July are officially confirmed in the monthly meteorological report of Weatherman Ernest L. Harner, disclosing there were only two cloudy days and six that were partly cloudy throughout the entire month. The remainder were clear and hot.

The maximum temperature was 100 degrees, reached July 16, setting a new heat record for the year, but during the last week the temperatures have not been far below this mark. The precipitation totalled 3.98 inches. The maximum and minimum temperatures for each day of July follows:

BLUE LAW REPEALED IS NOW EFFECTIVE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—Repealing the old "Blue Law," the Marshall Bill legalizing Sunday movies went into effect today.

The expiration of the ninety day referendum period was the signal to ministerial associations in several cities to begin campaigns for ordinances against Sunday theatrical performances.

As finally passed, the bill by Senator L. L. Marshall (R) of Cleveland legalized Sunday afternoon shows but gave local communities the privilege of local option on the question.

SEMINARY RECTOR DIES LATROBE, Pa., Aug. 3.—The Very Rev. Ambrose Kohlbeck, O. S. B., S. T. D., Rector of St. Vincent's Seminary, here, died today, after an illness of many years. He was attended when death came by the Rev. Girard Bridge, and brothers Alfonso Thumel and Thomas Pertocy.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit.—Ecclesiastes, 1, 14.

FEWER DICTATORS

Carlos Ibanez was an efficiency boy, who chiseled his way up from a captaincy in the Chilean army to the presidency of Chile. A popular emote has just let him down hard. The Chileans appear not to have resented the iron rod with which this military dictator ruled them, as long as times were good. They revolted against it when the man who wielded it failed to extract pork chops from the clouds. Carlos Ibanez, when he fled across the border into Argentina, was as truly a victim of economic depression as the capital that recently took flight from Germany.

Chile is one of the most enlightened, energetic, up-and-doing countries in South America. Virtually all of its 4,500,000 people are of European origin. They are a proud race, with aristocratic traditions. As might be expected, a few fine old patrician families have dominated the government during most of Chile's century and a quarter of independence. As might also be expected, a number of evils eventually found their way into the administration. Sinecures and nepotism were among the most costly of them to the country.

Against such things Captain Ibanez laid a deliberate lance, agitated against them, worked his way up to where he was able to dictate the personnel of the government, seized the presidency, and later had his possession of it regularized for a six-year term dating from 1927. A drastic house-cleaning followed the establishment of his military dictatorship. Sinecures in the civil service were abolished, salaries were cut and other reforms and economics effected. "The people" at last had a champion of their interests at the head of affairs.

The most significant aspect of the popular movement that ousted him is not that it marked a return to civilian government in Chile; but rather that the populace turned against a man who apparently had sought diligently to serve it. The same thing happened in Argentina last year, when Hipolito Irigoyen, a confirmed radical, was deposed from the presidency. Our South American friends have a useful contempt for constitutional niceties, when their leaders fail to deliver the goods. They do not allow the latter to stand upon the order of their going. They boot them across the border. Carlos Ibanez will now have time to reflect that inability to accomplish the impossible in terms of prosperity is the least pardonable of political sins.

AS THEY SOW

Guns as wanton murderers of little children are a new development of the Twentieth century, even in these gang-ridden United States. The brutes are worse than their predecessors of other days and other lands who threw tiny bodies from spearpoint to spearpoint in sport, for those semi-savages at least acted in accordance with the habit and temper of their times, and generally they had prejudice or war passion to urge them on.

Yet what has happened on East One Hundred and Seventh street, New York city, is no more than a natural and inevitable consequence of the long tolerance the killing gangster has been enjoying from American society, police and courts. Something of the sort was bound to occur sooner or later. And worse things will happen unless the nation rouses itself and takes the corrective measures which are necessary.

STILL POPULAR

A good language cannot be kept down. Yale recently dropped Greek and Latin as obligatory subjects; but now comes word from Harvard that twice as many of its students are concentrating on the classics as did a decade ago. A committee that has been investigating the status of Latin in the United States reports that more boys and girls are studying it than are studying all other foreign languages put together.

Why should that be, when dead languages butter no bread? A tutor at Harvard hinted the answer, when he told the Classical club of the university that its members "talked better" than the general run of college men. Their speech was smoother and more finished. Their writing was easier to read.

The explanation of this linguistic superiority is obvious. The English language is rooted in Latin and Greek. A knowledge of the latter tongue gives one confidence in handling English that aids fluency and precision. Acquaintance with Latin is not indispensable to the correct and easy use of English; but it provides one of the shortest routes to that goal. One does not even have to go to college to speak and write good English. Abraham Lincoln is a "classic example" of the possibility of mastering English without the assistance of the classics.

The "polish" which the classicists claim for those who are on speaking terms with their muse is not to be lightly regarded; but here, again, shadow may be mistaken for substance. The rugged style that has come from a purely Anglo-Saxon diet may carry one further in this rough and tumble world than ability to quote Cicero in the original will. Correct speech is like correct clothes. Wretched English grates on the educated ear as a ragged suit does on the eye. The continued esteem of Greek and Latin in at least one great American university is desirable no more for the literatures they unlock than for the influence a knowledge of them exerts on our own language and literature.

Kitch hiking is one of those diversions that might be permissible if the country were still simple and honest; or maybe we should say still honest, for there are times when it still seems simple enough and to spare.

The discovery that the last five cruisers added to the United States navy are defective ought to be a consolation to those patriotic citizens who fear that this country is over-armed on the seas.

New comets are discovered at the rate of several a year, but it is a fellow can't get a glimpse of them, what good are they?

We are still waiting anxiously for a sight of the child who was made miserably by the possession of a penny bank.

MY NEW YORK

—BY JAMES ASWELL—

NEW YORK. — Natives of a city invariably insist that it is ridiculously simple to find one's way about in the place. It is apparently somehow discreditable for a community to be laid out in a manner confusing to strangers, I have even met Bostonians who insisted that the street maze in that city was built upon a simplicity lucid to a child of four.

In New York, of course, old residents ridicule the idea of an intelligent stranger becoming confused. My own stupidity in the matter of locating quickly a desired house number appears, after four years, to be incurable. And this in the city which has been touted as the easiest in the world to navigate without guess-work!

Indeed, my slow-wittedness becomes all the more pathetic when it is remembered that for the avenues it is merely necessary to take the address number, cancel the last figure and divide by two; after which a key number is added and you are practically ringing the doorbell. If you know the key number, that is.

Yesterday I had occasion to visit a building in upper Broadway. The taxi driver nonchalantly flipped down his meter "flag" and sped away. I called out that I was sorry I didn't know what cross-town street was nearest my destination. "That's O. K., mister," he replied cheerily. "You don't need to know that. It's easy after a few years' hacking."

Whereupon he delivered me a lecture so replete with mathematical reasoning that it would have enabled me to pass my college board examination in algebra when I took it that fourth time. He pointed out that for addresses on Broadway, north of Fourteenth Street, you subtract 30; for addresses on Riverside Drive, divide the house number by 10 and add 72; for Central Park West, the number must be divided by 10 and 60 added. An so on.

At the corner of Broadway and 54th Street he pulled sharply to the curb. When he glanced back to turn his face bore a worried look. "I guess I figured wrong, mister. I won't charge you for the extra ride. It must be 45th Street—or maybe it's 15th, come to think!"

WITH A FAST CAMERA

The "gyp" taxis and the racketeer public porter are under fire from the Hotel Association. The latter are called "stealers" in the Broadway lingo and assure incoming passengers at railroad terminals that the hotel they have chosen is either full up or being torn down, suggesting another—probably ninth rate—place. But the high price cars are dwindling rapidly; they were all ancient wrecks, anyway.

New Yorkers have been surprised that Prince Alexis Obolensky is going around to teas and parties so short a time after his daughter, the Princess Troubetzkoy, flung herself to death from the top of Eiffel Tower. But that's the stoic attitude of his people.

Sign in the window of a tailoring shop in 44th Street: "Exclusive but Not Expensive." Tailors and other small shopkeepers can buy these little cards, lettered in gilt, by the dozen, containing such thoughts as "A Pleased Customer Is Our Best Advertisement" and so on. The Russian who runs that 44th Street shop put up his batch the first day of business and his knowledge of English discovered nothing about the extra one which said: "If You Like These Cards Send for Our Complete Catalogue!"

BANISHMENT OF FOUR INDICTAES ARGENTINA IS NEAR REVOLUTION

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—With recent tidings that General Uriburu's dictatorship at Buenos Aires had ordered Dr. Marcelo T. de Alvear, Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, Dr. Carlos Noel (every Latin-American of the slightest consequence either is a general or a doctor of some sort) and Dr. Jose Tamborino out of Argentina, all doubt vanished that the River Plate republic is on the verge of an explosion of major proportions.

Dr. de Alvear was the country's last president before Dr. Hipolito Irigoyen, whose administration was overthrown by a revolution under General Uriburu's leadership. Dr. Pueyrredon has held nearly every cabinet post in the republic and formerly was Argentina's ambassador in Washington. Both are multi-millionaires. Dr. Noel once was mayor of Buenos Aires. Dr. Tamborino, though less known abroad than Drs. de Alvear, Pueyrredon and Noel, is a very influential politician among his own countrymen, nevertheless.

A fair parallel in the United States would be the locking up of Calvin Coolidge, William G. McAdoo, Big Bill Thompson and for the sake of getting some big money into the comparison, say Senator James Couzens—not on any particular charge, but simply as troublemakers.

Of the four men against whom Dictator Uriburu's decrees of exile were pronounced, Dr. de Alvear, Pueyrredon and Noel would hardly rate in this country as even moderate liberals.

It is true that they have long been identified with what is known in Argentina as the radical party, but radicalism there is as frequently a mere label as the Republican and Democratic designations are here. Drs. de Alvear and Pueyrredon, especially, with their vast wealth, never have been so much as "pinks."

How About "Sex Solidarity"? Once It Was Reasonable Now We Don't Hear So Much About It

By MARSHALL MASLIN

We don't hear about sex solidarity any more, and we used to hear about it all the time.

Once people talked about the Man's Point of View and the Woman's Point of View. And when there was a scandal or a tragedy in town, the men lined up on one side of it and the women on the other. The men sided with the Man, the women with the Woman. The women told their husbands just what they thought of the situation; the men growled and told their real thoughts, only to the men. It was Sex Solidarity. That's what it was, and it divided men and women as clearly as a sharp knife divides a watermelon.

Little women and little boys were told to be Little Men. The boys had boys' toys, the girls had dolls. The boys felt immeasurably superior to the girls; the girls felt very sniffling indeed about the boys. Everything encouraged the Sex Solidarity; the tomboy was a "sissy," the dreamy boy was a "sissy" to her parents. And then we had "campaigns" for the Emancipation of Woman. Lady Lecturers—regular rabble-rousers they were—made speeches to the women's clubs and talked about the intolerable tyranny of Men and what selfish, stupid brutes they were, after all. And women in the audience forgot about their brothers and their fathers and their husbands—whom they had never thought of as brutes—and took up arms against the Common Foe. I think the women felt like noble, direct descendants of that wonderful tribe of Amazons who killed any man who attempted to explore their country. I know the men felt puzzled and irritated and unfairly abused.

Well, what's happened to this Sex Solidarity? It seems to have gone out like Couesim and Oh-you-ki! And Making the World Safe for Democracy, and you never hear anything about Embattled Womanhood and Man-the-Simon-Legree any more.

On what great battlefield, on what tumultuous day, did the hosts of womanhood meet the villainous foe and win a glorious victory or go down in honorable defeat? I don't know. I didn't hear about it. It's not in any of the history books I've read. . . . All I know is that it's years since I've heard any woman mention Sex Solidarity. Somewhere it seems there was a fraternizing between the entrenched armies—and then there was a truce—and then a conference of the foes—and someone spoke a little common sense—and it was secretly agreed that men and women are not eternal enemies but just People—just Human Beings who are happy and troubled and hopeful and trying to do the best they can together.

That's what happened to Sex Solidarity. It was like the word that aviators write with smoke in the skies and a strong wind of truth blew it clean away.

Dr. Noel is as progressive, perhaps, as Senator Capper of Kansas; Dr. Tamborino maybe as much so as Senator Borah—quite advanced, but regular.

Dr. Irigoyen really was rather radical. Still, he did nothing startling during his presidential term preceding Dr. Alvear's quite conservative one, ending in 1928, when Dr. Irigoyen came into office again, in turn. Even then the Irigoyen policy probably was less responsible for the dissatisfaction which ensued than the fact that the doctor had grown exceedingly crabbed with age.

He certainly was a mighty disagreeable (though honest) old man.

General Uriburu, representing the ultra-reactionaries, decided that the time was ripe for his group to get into office by the revolutionary method, and Dr. Irigoyen had made himself so greatly disliked that the general succeeded, though the radicals had won handily at the polls only a short while previously.

Where Dictator Uriburu seems to have erred was in mistaking anti-revolution sentiment for anti-radical sentiment. Thinking to legalize the position he had grabbed for himself, he called another election—but (do and behold!) the radicals won again.

Thereupon the dictator announced that that election didn't count and stayed on the job.

Now, the Argentines are the flower of the Latin American peoples. They do not put up long with despotisms and it was not long before Dictator Uriburu found himself with revolutionary troubles of his own on his hands. Dispatches have described them as occurring only in the provinces of Corrientes and Entre Rios and the territories of Misiones, Formosa and Chaco, which really are somewhat remote and thinly-settled. Mention, however, also has been made lately of the declaration of martial law in the province of Santa Fe, and Santa Fe province (I ran a farm there once myself) bears about the same relation to Argentina that the combined states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania bear to the remainder of this country.

If, here in the United States, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania turned so ugly that it was found necessary to put them under martial law, and then ex-President Coolidge, William G. McAdoo, Big Bill Thompson and Senator Couzens had to be banished to keep them quiet, one doubts whether the situation pretty threatening.

A revolution in Chile is not so important as one in Argentina.

The Chileans, on an average (among the exceptions are some very fine folk), are nothing to compare with the Argentines, who (with the Uruguayans) but there are only about 1,000,000 of them) are the pick of the new world peoples south of the Rio Grande.

Buenos Aires alone is no trifling. It is the second Latin city in the world.

MENU HINT

Honeydew Balls (served with cracked ice)

Chicken Pie Creamed New Peas

Pineapple and Pear Salad (in a green gelatin, topped with Philadelphia Cream Cheese and Mayonnaise)

Angel Food Cake Dessert

Coffee

Green and White Mints

This is a luncheon menu for 16 guests. The color scheme is green and white. If you have an iceless refrigerator you can freeze a green grape in each ice cube to carry out the color scheme.

Today's Recipes

Chicken Pie.—This is simply the cut-up chicken in a thin gravy, either white sauce or slightly thickened chicken gravy, combined with cubed potatoes and baked with a rich custard crust on top.

Angel Food Cake Dessert.—Plain angel cake is topped with green and white ice cream.

Suggestions

Dustcloth for Porch

A dustcloth should be kept on every porch to prevent soil getting on ladies' summer dresses and also on men's light trousers. A smart handkerchief bag on a ribbon may be thumb-tacked on the back of a cedar chair, in which each morning there is placed several clean white dustcloths which are always at hand to use for this purpose.

Discarded Tub Dresses

Cut off upper part of one-piece washable dresses just below the armholes, stitch or baste across the top of what remains, and you have a slip or bag into which you may place folded quilts, comforts, blankets, etc., when storing away for the summer. Whether on wardrobe shelves or in boxes, this covering cannot slip off, and prevents streaks from air and dust. Or, if you prefer, by sewing up neck and sleeves, they make splendid bags for dropping over dainty coats and gowns on hangers in the wardrobe, protecting from air and dust.

How Doctor Discovered Germ of Ill

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.—

Tuberculosis
Doctor Robert Koch was a young doctor in Germany established in general practice when the scientific world was aflame with the news that germs had been discovered as the cause of certain diseases. Only a few diseases were at first announced as being in this class—anthrax, a disease of sheep occasionally transmitted to man, being one of the first that Pasteur, the great French scientist, proved to be of this nature. But all the fevers and contagious diseases were suspected, and every doctor who had a microscope was trying to make a discovery.

Young Doctor Koch was no exception. In spite of the fact that his wife kept nagging him to build up a big practice, he began studying the exudates from sick people under the microscope. Finally he made a great discovery—the cause of the infection of wounds and of the infection of women after childbirth. Then he tackled tuberculosis, and in 1882 was able to announce that he had discovered the germ which causes it—the tubercle bacillus.

This was a great step in advance because doctors were then able to decide for the first time whether a disease was actually tuberculosis or not. Many thought certain bone diseases were of the same nature as a consumption—tuberculosis of the lungs. Now they were able to prove it by demonstrating the tubercle bacillus in the scrapings from the diseased bone. Thus it became known that tuberculosis affects nearly every structure in the body—the lungs, lymph nodes in the neck, bones and joints, and kidneys, being the most frequent sites.

It was also proved that animals have tuberculosis. But each animal seems to be susceptible to a peculiar strain of the disease. Thus birds have avian tuberculosis and cattle have bovine tuberculosis.

Since cows have tuberculosis, the question arose whether an infected cow would give off tubercle bacilli in the milk, and whether this would cause disease in the human beings who drank it.

Koch said "no" very emphatically. He declared that bovine tuberculosis never caused human tuberculosis. And since his authority was very great, since he was the original discoverer of the germ, his views were accepted.

Not by everyone, however. When technical methods allowed people to differentiate the bovine from the human strains better, it was proved first that bovine tuberculosis in milk could set up the disease in children—in the bones and joints, the intestines and the lymph nodes of the neck. Finally, in 1911, two French bacteriologists presented a series of cases of consumption—tuberculosis of the lungs—caused by the bovine strain of the bacillus.

So today we know that cows can transmit tuberculosis to man in milk. What preventive measures are carried out will be explained tomorrow.

Shall Wife Get Divorce?

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

"Dear Virginia Lee: What do you think of a married man who has been married twenty years and has a family nearly grown, and has turned his wife down for another married woman? Always talks about the other woman to his wife, bragging how keen the other one is, and has said he was going to leave her; and has gone and done crazy, too, and wants to be a traveling man and quit the farm?"

He claims his wife is jealous of him and thinks she doesn't want him to talk to other women and have a good time with them, and is always complaining about everything and is crabbed around home. And quick as someone comes he is jolly, and when they leave is the same thing over.

"His wife isn't jealous and she is a good woman and is always ready to help him every time he hollers for help, and always does her part since they were married."

"Will you please give your advice if you think she ought to stay with him or get a divorce and let him be free. He wants one and don't want one."

I think if the wife loves her husband and doesn't want to divorce him she should exercise the utmost superhuman patience with which wives seem to be gifted, and meet his complaints with silence. A great many people, both men and women, go through a discontented period when they are the age your husband is, and the family has to stand it just as they do the children's mumps and measles. Sometimes they do the very unwise thing of making themselves so unbearable to the mate that said mate divorces them, and the married someone else who seems very desirable. And they live unhappily ever after, wishing someone had hit them over the head with a paddle or something before they let them make such a wreck of their lives.

If you can possibly stand your husband, do so. You can't spank him as he deserves. If there is any possible way to let him go and try the salesmanship job and let you run the farm without him, let him go. He will come back so chastened that you will have no further trouble.

Keep yourself up and laugh off his ill temper if you can, or pay no attention to it. That is not easy, I know. Tease him about his girl friends and tell him, laughingly, that you are thinking of getting another man. If you act as if you didn't care about his remarks and actions he won't get much fun out of making them.

He's trying to make you jealous, of course. Don't let him.

"Dear Virginia: Just a word to these little girls who write and say 'I can't forget him.' Perhaps after I tell my little story they'll say, 'I can and I will.'"

"I'm just a little girl who lost her heart to the wrong boy. Believing him to be true, I trusted him and adored the very ground he walked upon. He led me to believe he loved me, too, but I soon found out that he was going with another girl to whom he was engaged."

"I know and realized that it was up to me to fade from the picture, although I loved him beyond words. When I met him it was difficult not to smile and be nice to him. Yet all the time I loved. You must forgive him! It was hard to turn down his heart, as he still wanted to go out with me."

"Soon other bad remarks were made about him, so every time I wanted to think of him I would remember the song, 'He's not worth your tears.'"

"He was married June 6 and I did not think a thing about it, but was happy for him."

"So you see I did forget, although it certainly seemed impossible at first. Remember, 'Where there's a will there's a way.' Best wishes ever, Virginia. Happy Days."

Foot Troubles May Be Helped

—By GLADYS GLAD—

The girl who plods along with heavy, weary steps, whose gait bears an uncomfortably close resemblance to that humorous and labored shuffle of Stepin Fetchit's, certainly doesn't present any picture of grace and youthfulness to the eye of the beholder. But it's not easy to step along briskly and lightly when one's pedal extremities are as fatigued and aching as a college freshman's head after his first drunk. And feet are prone to be more troublesome in summer than at any other time of the year. For the heat tends to increase the activities of the perspiratory glands of the feet and often even causes the feet to swell.

To prevent foot discomfort during the summer months, absolute cleanliness is essential. The feet should be thoroughly scrubbed morning and night, and fresh, clean stockings should be donned at least once every day. If the feet perspire excessively, a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water may be used. This solution should be applied for three nights and then used once a week.

There are so many excellent foot powders on the market that I wonder that more men and women do not acquire the habit of using one of them. Dusting the shoes as well as the feet keeps the feet from swelling and prevents too much moisture of the skin.

Stockings can be very uncomfortable if they do not fit correctly. Those that are too short will cramp the toes, and may even cause bunions. And stockings that are too large and wrinkle under the feet can cause the most painful of foot disorders. Stockings should fit correctly, and should always be loosened at the toes before the feet are thrust into the shoes.

The best remedy for tired, aching feet is to soak them in a tub-ful of warm water in which a cupful of epsom salts has been dissolved. After the soaking, cool water should be sprayed or rubbed over the feet. This procedure will take the soreness from your aching tootsies, and will have a most soothing effect on them.

PINCH HITTING for Phil Frame by R. A. H.

Harry "Atlas" Smith, the big butter-and-egg man from Paintersville, pilot of the Paintersville Famous Autos softball team and Tex Rickard of the recent jamboree at Paintersville, makes his excuses, gives thanks and takes a bow in the following letter to this column:

"We mean for this to be a letter of regrets and also of thanks. The big regret is that in having only 1,400 sandwiches at our lawn fete Wednesday evening we were able to refuse only approximately half of the largest gathering of chicken sandwich friends that I have ever been pleased to see in one place at the same time, but considering that the chickens were donated, to have asked for more would have been too great a strain for even so generous a community as this to have stood. In other words there is a limit to everything."

"We had so many things to be thankful for and so many people to thank that to do so personally would be an impossibility, so those that we are especially grateful to I am listing below with the very sincere hope that it may be noticed by the ones for whom it is intended and considered a personal message from each member of our softball team."

"The Xenia Softball Commission for their fine cooperation. "Each member of the visiting teams for the very important part they played in the evening's entertainment."

"The sport department of the Xenia Gazette (we couldn't have wished for more). "Our neighbors and friends who helped swell the crowd to near 2,000 (especially those who came hungry and went away the same way)."

"The people of this community who so generously donated the chickens and cakes."

"Those who so kindly volunteered their services in the way of manual labor, before, during and after."

"We would especially thank the weatherman for the ideal evening without which our whole enterprise would have been a flop."

"The above are not meant to be listed in the order of their importance, but just as they came to mind."

"We intend to use the money realized (approximately $60) for better accommodations for our fans. Our profit for the evening was held to a minimum because of our inability to handle the large crowd in an efficient manner and that is not added as a rebuke or personal accusation but simply as the result of a check on what was sold and what the profit should have been."

"Our last and very sincere wish is that our visitors enjoyed being with us as much as we enjoyed having them."

"Yours for bigger and better chicken sandwiches." "Atlas" Smith.

The above effusion by "Atlas," better late than never, coming on the last day of our responsibility for the task of fishing up this daily boloney, is most welcome and practically guarantees us a reader for Monday evening since "Atlas" will be sure to read his own stuff.

By the time this column has been expressed in printer's ink, Phil Frame, regular motorman of this department, will be back on the job (let us pray) and life once more will have returned to as near a semblance of normalcy as the life of a newspaper man ever gets.

This columnist is pleased that you have borne with him during the last two weeks, realizing, perhaps, that it is difficult to find grist for this mill after being out of touch with sport writing for some time.

During the period of substitution there was little excitement in the local sport world, unless the invasion of the Hollywood girls' team would be considered a sport event of unusual moment. The Downtown Country Club, minus the services of Frame and "Skip" Finlay, who vacationed with him, dropped out of a tie for first place, with the Langs in the National League during that period, and is now in second place. Leadership in the American League was unchanged.

FROM HEARSE TO PLANE

CHEYBOYGAN, Mich.—A brief sensation was created here when a hearse, with a fire engine clearing the way, sped to the local airport. There two men alighted, to dash to an airplane and speed aloft into the clouds. The Cheyboygan natives were puzzled until it was explained that Major Floyd Evans, director of the Michigan State Board of Aeronautics, had bargained with Ceryle Kimberly, local undertaker, for a ride in a hearse the price to be a ride in the major's airplane.

SHELL MIAMISBURG HURLERS FROM HILL UNDER HIT BARRAGE

Bat Around Twice To Score Twelve Runs In Second

Upon our word, those surprising Xenia Merchants are an aggregation of cluffers. What with the heat, it was hardly to be expected they would have the energy to go out and run the bases with the utter abandon they displayed Sunday afternoon in swamping an inferior Miamisburg baseball nine by the remarkable count of 27 to 5 at Washington Park.

But it seems that the hotter it is the better Jess Chambliss' crew likes it, for the lads cuffed the ball plenty and gave a great exhibition of high powered scoring in what was ostensibly a baseball game. Lambasting twenty-six hits, of which quite a few were for extra bases, the Merchants had the Burgers shouting "Kamerad," after the good old German style, before the contest, if it may be termed such, was less than two innings old.

Both teams started out on an even basis, that is, each side had fielding practice; but when the game actually started, the spirit of equality ended then and there. The visiting nine obtained a temporary advantage by grinding out two runs in the first stanza on an error and two doubles, but this rally did not hold a candle to the second inning.

In the second, the Xenia nine battered entirely around twice and accumulated the almost unbelievable total of twelve runs. The Merchants made an even dozen hits, including two triples, and Miller, starting Birger hurler, was derided in favor of McElfresh who was less effective, if possible, than his predecessors.

Not content with this twelve-run spurge, the Merchants showed no mercy. They tallied three more in the fourth, two in the fifth, four in the sixth and a final gesture, added six lucious markers in the eighth. Heavenly days. What a rebellion!

All of the Merchant players participated in the big slugfest. There were no exceptions. Each one hit safely at least twice, Ruse and Ankeney each getting four blows. All the boys excepting Burnbaugh and Johnson each pilfered one or more bases to boot. The Xenia team had nine thefts to its credit.

At that, there was a Burger batter who outshone all of the Merchants. Waymer, first baseman, had thirteen putouts, including many unassisted, and at bat he had a perfect average. He hit a double and three singles scored three runs and stole two bases. He was just on the wrong team that was all.

Jasper Ankeney in person pitched most of the game for Xenia, while Marshall, center fielder, was called in to hurl the last several rounds, which he did in good style. The Burgers got ten hits, but what of it.

The Fayetteville man and a companion had parked their auto along the road and both men started across the pike. The former looked neither to the right nor left and Dr. Madison's machine, also occupied by his wife and Mr. Mrs. Lester Lane, E. Church St., was upon him too suddenly for the driver to swerve out of the way.

The fatally injured man died a short time afterward.

The accident was pronounced unavoidable by eye-witnesses and Dr. Madison was released after questioning. He and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Lane were returning to Xenia after motoring through the southern part of Ohio and northern Kentucky.

Dr. Madison, who communicated details of the accident to Sheriff John Baugh upon his return to this city, said the man, a Fayetteville butcher, stepped from behind a parked auto along the highway and walked directly in the path of his car.

SCHEDULE ENTERS PERIOD OF CRUCIAL GAMES THIS WEEK

Leadership in the National and American Softball Leagues remains unchanged after another week of play but with the teams aligned in such a way that anything might happen.

The Lang Chevrolets, last year's city champions, are holding a one-game lead in the National League and will not go any lower than that for a while, at least.

The Langs will get a supreme test Monday evening when they meet the Downtown Country Club, league second-placers in the first game of the fourth and final round of play in the National loop.

If the leaders win, they will be two full games in front of the pack and very likely to finish that way at the end of the season. If the Downtowners win, they will go into a tie for first place with the Langs and will still have a chance to beat them out on the season.

Each team in the circuit has about five more games to play and it is unlikely that any team besides the Downtowners can win enough of those games to displace the league leaders before the season ends. The Downtowners will finish their schedule, August 27, against the Criterion, while the Langs will wind up August 28 with the Red Wings, now third placers in the loop.

During the past week Central High displaced the Krippendorfs Dittman team, last year's American League champs, from second place in that circuit while the All Stars are holding a full game lead in first place. The All Stars meet the shoemakers Thursday in what may be a crucial game as this circuit winds up August 20 and this will be the last meeting of these teams. The All Stars will play Central High, present second-placers, August 11, in another important game.

The American League opens its sixth and final round of play Tuesday evening when Central High meets St. Bridg and, from all prospects should gain a half game on the league leaders.

PLAN EXTRA GAME

Following the scheduled National League game between the Lang Chevrolets and the Downtowners at Cox Field Monday night, another softball game, or as much of a game as possible, will be played between Central High and the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadets. Central has met the Home team twice, winning one game and losing one, and this will be the rubber game. Manager Glenn Patterson urges all Central players to report in uniform.

SPYING ON SPORTS BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

Camembert? Oh, No! For heavies, lighties, middleies, too. The Gob's an easy dish, But what is puzzling me and you is if he's ham or fish.

NOW THAT the Chicago White Sox have dug in, apparently for the summer, in the eighth place trench, comes again that ancient query from the letter-writing fan:

"Why don't the Sox get rid of old Red Faber? He's won only three games. He's all washed up."

Oh, Yeah? Well, the Sox hold on to Faber for two reasons. No. 1, sentiment. No. 2, Red can still win some ball games. Maybe that No. 2 reason should be placed first, because the Sox ownership has been notorious for doing things on a sentimental slant.

Anyway, Faber stuck with the club and the fans when the infamous "Black Sox" scandal was brewing back in 1919. That's undoubtedly partially the reason there never is any rumors or reports that Red is to be traded or sold or waived down the river.

FABER'S WON three ball games so far this season and while three victories are just a week-end's work for clubs like the A's, the Senators and Cardinals, it's par for Chicago hurlers this season—so far.

Old Urban C. has never been one of those elbowers who bask in the limelight of popular acclaim. However, he's averaged fourteen wins a year in seventeen seasons' toil for the White Sox and that's a pretty swell record for any one.

Strangely enough, Faber has been just about as good a tosser as with a weak club at his back when he had the world champion giving him a lift. From 1914, when he joined the Sox, to 1920, the last year of the mighty Chicago pennant combine, Red turned in 103 wins—or fourteen a season. In the ten seasons since the breakup of the Chicago club which followed revelation of world series crookedness Faber has won 134 contests (not counting this season's three) for a yearly average of 13.4.

That average with a chronic flop like the Sox or the late ten years would do justice to a Walter Johnson.

THINGS COULD be worse. Imagine being a National League umpire and reading in the paper that Mickey Walker has signed as assistant manager to John McGraw.

Among the jobs that nobody wants—despite the depression—is that of trying to sell world series tickets in Cincinnati.

An old-timer is a fellow who can remember when the defeat of a United States Davis cup team was news. Now it's a habit. If you see anyone weeping over it, it won't be William Tatem Tilden.

The difference between Jack Sharkey and everybody else is that now even his best friends are telling him.

FLYER KILLED IN AIR CRASH

OSCODA, Mich., Aug. 3.—One army flyer was killed and another was seriously injured today when an observation airplane from Scott Field, Danville, Illinois, crashed to the ground from a height of 300 feet at the local airport.

Corporal John W. Gibson, the observer, met death and the pilot, a Lieutenant Grant, was seriously hurt.

An observation ship from Selfridge Field, Michigan was dispatched here to return the body and the injured man.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The stock market found the going on the upside decidedly to its liking in a continuation of quiet trading activity today, and leading stocks were able to chalk up fairly good sized price gains without undue difficulty.

The failure of professionals to resume selling in early dealings influenced considerable short covering by bearish traders, with improvement first visible in the run of recently depressed pivotal favorites, and then spreading to take in virtually all sections of the market, including the rails.

The Flower Parade

(This is another article of a series on gardens.)

CUT ROSES. Written for Central Press By DR. KARL F. KELLERMAN, Bureau of Plant Industry U. S. Department of Agriculture. CUT ROSES have a definite place in the flower parade that no other flower can fill, and no experienced gardener leaves such a conspicuous gap. Oldest and hardest of the roses suitable for cutting is the Hybrid Remontant, or Hybrid Perpetual. Although it produces well as a type, it is not so continuous a bloomer as some others, horticulturists of the Bureau of Plant Industry point out. Frau Karl Druschki, Countess of Roseburg, Oakmont, Plus IX, Eugene Furst and Baroness Rothschild are good bloomers. General Jacqueminot and Paul Neyron are also satisfactory, but less productive. American Beauty is a poor bloomer out of doors. Less hardy are the tea roses. As a rule they are weak growers, although they bloom more freely than the Hybrid Perpetuals. The Hybrid Teas are hardy enough over much of the eastern and central United States. They are free bloomers during most of the summer. Radiance, Red Radiance, several kinds of Killameys, and Gruss an Teplitz are very satisfactory. The Baby Ramblers make a good continuous show of clustered blooms. Notable among these are Triomphe Orleansais, Baby Rambler, Mme. Cecile Brunner and Marie Parry.

The modern garden is just as well off without such old-time favorites as moss roses and the old hundred leaf roses. They bloom only once and their foliage falls easy prey to disease. RECEIPTS GAIN. A gain of $260.75 in receipts at the Xenia Post Office in July as compared with the same month a year ago is noted in the monthly financial statement of Postmaster C. S. Frazier. Postal receipts in July, 1931 amounted to $3,887, and during the corresponding month in 1930 the revenue totalled $3,622.32, the report shows.

SMALL CHECKER BOARD. CROOKSVILLE, O., Aug. 3.—Probably the smallest player checker board in the state is now in use by checker fanciers at the J. B. Carson's barber shop here. The actual playing dimensions of the board is five inches and the checkers in use are much smaller than a dime. However the tiny board is well mounted and well made and on a board to be held on the knees of the players. Checker devotees find much sport pushing the "mea" over the squares, each of which can be hidden with the end of the finger.

CHAPTER 47

"BUT... BUT he may—" Ana began frantically, as Lady Mooring sought to detain her.

"Nothing can happen to him. He knows I'm with you. And Hilary, his half-brother, is with him."

"Roy has been my savior," Lady Mooring went on. "I told him about the Lamovits. He told me to leave tonight later he rang me up to say he had the letters and an emerald of mine that I had been forced to give them."

"I remember I saw it. That night they tried to murder him. When he stayed at my flat."

Lady Mooring smiled. "It was, my dear, and the next time I met Roy he could talk of nothing but Ann Carmichael. And I, too, was a little jealous. It seemed I had found Lee's son only to have him snatched from me by some other woman."

To her lips Ann lifted the slim fingers holding hers.

"You know I'm not jealous of you now. It was only that I didn't understand. You can always have your share of Roy. You must come and stay with us in New York so that you can be with him without people talking."

Tenderly Lady Mooring patted the young face beside her.

"Roy was right when he said you were kind and generous."

Then the elder woman continued her story.

"Soon after Roy got those letters, Amos Lamovit rang up and said Lee Lawson was still alive, that he was going to him to get further evidence against me. It seemed as if the world had come to an end. I went straight to Roy."

Into the girl's mind there flashed the episode of the midnight visit to the Savoy.

"I couldn't believe it," Lady Mooring went on. "If it were true it meant my second marriage was illegal, my three younger sons illegitimate. Roy tried to comfort me."

He said it was a put up thing. That there wasn't a word of truth in it. But when I told him Lee's body had never been found, I knew he began to wonder. He said he would investigate the matter. I made him promise that if he heard anything to tell me the truth. I could stand no more deception. Well, Ann, you know most of the rest."

There was another pause. Like stifled moans, the sob of the sea came in at the open window. When the countess started talking again her voice was a dreary monotone. "The moment I heard Lee was alive, that he had sacrificed himself in order to screen me, I determined to give up everything, to sacrifice everybody but Roy and Lee. To go back to my first husband. But my darling Lee determined otherwise. He died as he had lived, screening me. When Roy reached his father, Lee denied him, refusing to admit he was Lee Lawson. But his actions belied him. For he killed the man who had made my life a purgatory. Drove all four of them and himself into one of the craters in Hawaii."

Again Lady Mooring paused, the pain in her dark eyes deepening. "I only reached Honolulu yesterday," she went on a moment later. "And tomorrow I had intended to go to Lee. Then I heard Roy was back and I went straight to him. He... he told me what had happened and tried to comfort me, telling me his father had acted for the best. That I couldn't have condemned and deserted my three innocent boys. Afterwards Hilary went to Roy, to do what he called 'have it out about the title. But Roy refuses to take it. He says things must go on as they are, that his father's sacrifice must not be in vain. He pointed out to Hilary that there is not a bit of evidence to support his, Roy's claim, assuming he wanted to make one. And that if Hilary brought the matter up, he would only be thought a lunatic and cause still more suffering and scandal. Like Lee, Roy is sacrificing himself to save me. Now, Ann, you have the whole story. You can disagree me if you wish. You can declare my three younger sons illegitimate. You can break the heart of the kind, just man who is their father. But Roy shall not suffer any more through me."

Ann dropped on her knees beside the tortured woman.

The Theater

That screen classic, "The Miracle Man," will be made into a talkie with George Bancroft playing the Thomas Meighan silent film role of the confidence man.

This is the most exciting announcement from Hollywood for several months. "The Miracle Man" was one of the greatest popular successes of its day and it made the screen reputations of Thomas Meighan, Betty Compson and the late Lon Chaney.

Paramount, in buying the dialogue rights, undoubtedly has turned a neat piece of business for itself. And Mr. Bancroft gets a great role handed to him on a silver platter. While the deal still is too fresh for a complete cast to be announced, Irving Pichel has been selected to re-create the Lon Chaney part of the fake cripple.

Several days ago this column inadvertently carried the statement that Constance Bennett would appear at the Orpheum soon in "Rebound." No correction was published later in the belief that the mistake would not be noticed. But it was. Of course the Bennett starring vehicle coming here is "Born to Love."

Viola Dana was in Hollywood the other day for a visit with her sister Shirley Mason (Mrs. Sidney Lanfield). She had intended to remain for the blessed event at the Lanfield home, but got homesick and returned to Colorado Springs, where she has made her home since her marriage to Jimmie Thompson, the golf pro.

The girl and the blind healer, whose simple faith eventually converts the racketeers, are yet to be chosen. Needless to say, there will be a wild scramble for the parts. George Loane Tucker never equalled the heights he reached in the direction of the original silent version and Frank L. Packard, in writing it, reached his peak, too. The scenario and director appointed to succeed them, face a heavy responsibility.

Paramount claims that Irving Pichel is on his way to stardom. The former Civic and Little Theater actor not only gets "The Miracle Man" role but will support Talullah Bankhead in a modern version of "The Cheat." Strange how the old hits are coming back to the talkie screen. Originally Fannie Ward and Sessue Hayakawa played in this film. The new version will not have an Oriental hero.

Bancroft, who was originally announced for the starring role in "Through the Window," the mystery melodrama purchased by Paramount from Martin Plavin and Joe

U. S. DIRIGIBLE AKRON WILL BE CHRISTENED NEXT SATURDAY

AKRON, O., Aug. 3.—One hundred thousand or more persons from every walk of life and from every section of the nation will gather here next Saturday, to witness the christening of the world's largest dirigible, the U. S. S. Akron.

From the Atlantic ocean to the Pacific and from Canada to Mexico, travelers are expected to trek toward this rubber metropolis all week by practically every means of transportation.

On Saturday, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, will officially name the new air liner. It is cut free from its moorings inside the mammoth Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp. hangar at Municipal airport. The monster craft will not leave its dock but will float free, under its own power for the first time.

A flock of snow-white pigeons, symbolic of this peace-time ship, will be released by the first lady of the land as she christens the craft the "United States Airship Akron." Release of the pigeons will replace the customary breaking of a bottle of liquid air on the main cabin.

Squadrons of Army, Marine and Navy airplanes will pay tribute to this newest addition to the American Navy just before the christening ceremonies. Flying in formation, twenty army ships from Wright Field at Dayton, Ohio, will dip in salute over the huge hangar, welcoming the new craft on behalf of the Army.

Nine planes from the Marine field at Quantico, Va., together with a squadron of nine other planes from the Anacostia, Md., naval base will follow the airmen from the army and pay their tribute to the dirigible in turn.

During the christening proper, all of these planes, will be on the ground at the airport. They will leave the city shortly after the ceremonies are completed.

A luncheon for Mrs. Hoover is to be held in Goodyear Hall before the ceremonies begin.

The special train which will bring the first lady and a large delegation of official Washington probably will arrive in Akron some time during the morning. According to present plans, the special train will return Saturday night.

Despite the undoubted importance of this gala event, the christening ceremonies to members of the Akron's crew and to residents of the city will be only an anti-climax in the history of the ship's construction.

The climax will come probably two or three weeks later when the largest lighter-than-air craft ever built by man is brought from its dock and takes off on its maiden flight.

There will be seven of these test flights. Each will be held to test some specific part of the new airship. Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, skipper of the Akron, expects to complete his test flights within a month after the christening.

Sometime after the christening and before the first test flight, the Navy dirigible Los Angeles, third largest dirigible in the world, will visit Akron. This visit will give residents of Akron and visitors an opportunity to determine the size of the Akron by actual comparison.

The Los Angeles is 658 feet in length; the Akron 758. The new dirigible actually will bulk two and a half times as large as the Los Angeles. The Akron will carry 91 tons; the Los Angeles carries 30 tons. Only the Graf Zeppelin among crafts now flying is larger than the Los Angeles and the German craft will be relegated to second place when the Akron takes the air.

Spectators at the christening will be allowed to overflow the entire airport grounds and even inside the hangar within a limited space, officials have announced. Preparations are being made to handle the largest crowd in the history of the airport.

When the giant ship takes off for its test flights, however, spectators will be barred from the field. A gigantic fence, believed to be the longest ever built in Ohio, is now under construction around the entire landing field. The fence will be made of wire to allow the spectators an opportunity to see everything that is going on inside the fence.

45, who was believed to have been killed at a farmhouse party near Manchester, O. One of the guests at the party was believed to have driven over Murphy's body while he was lying in the driveway at the farmhouse.

Stricken with the heat while watching a swimming party at Perinton, near Newark, Robert Billman, 70, of Newark, collapsed and fell.

With his head crushed, as though he had tried to descend from a freight train, an unidentified Negro, about 25 years old was found dead on the New York Central Railway track near Columbus.

The father and mother of eight children were in a critical condition in Mercy Hospital at Columbus as the aftermath of what police said was an attempt by the man to kill his wife and end his own life.

The husband, William Hanson, 27, left a note saying his wife was too extravagant. A bullet wound was expected to cost Mrs. Hanson, 27, her right eye.

Clayton Jensen, 18, was drowned while wading in Wolf Creek near Dayton. Unable to swim, the youth lost his footing and plunged into a hole where gravel had recently been dredged from the creek. He was the tenth drowning victim of the year in Dayton.

A heart attack, believed induced by the heat caused the death of Mrs. Frances DeVore, 55, at Cleveland. She was found dead in the Zeta Beta, Tau Fraternity house where she was employed as caretaker.

Miss Lena Simon, 18, Cleveland, was killed and four women companions of the girl were severely injured when the automobile in which they were riding overturned near the Medina County line. The injured, Betty Simon, 20, and Julia Simon, 16, sisters of the victim, and Mrs. Helen Milkowitsch, 26, and Miss Margaret Chisholm, 17, were taken to Berea Hospital for treatment.

Pattie Lou Robinson, 3, of Weston, W. Va., was killed in an automobile accident at Millersburg, O. Six persons were injured when a United States Travel Bureau automobile enroute from New York to Chicago swerved from the highway and dropped into a ravine near East Liverpool. Joseph A. Doyle, New York, driver of the car, was held by Columbiana County authorities pending an investigation.

Paul Messner, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Messner, Sandusky, was instantly killed when the automobile in which he was riding with his family, was struck by a Lake Shore electric car a mile east of Clyde, O. The accident occurred when the family was leaving a lane following a picnic. The machine caught fire and was destroyed.

Mrs. Messner and sons, Lawrence, 18, and Jackie, 4, were severely injured in the crash.

MORE STUDENTS

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—Admissions of new students to Ohio State University up to July 15 for the fall quarter were slightly greater than at the corresponding period a year ago, it was reported by Blard L. Stradley, university examiner. The total number of new students admitted for the fall quarter on that date was 800 as against 740 on the corresponding day a year ago. There were 694 freshmen among them.

ADRIAN, Mich.—Everett Cool didn't live up to his last name when his wife wanted to cut the golden curls of their 2-year-old daughter during hot weather. In fact, he became very much aroused and struck his wife, he admitted. It cost him $15.40 in court.

AUTOISTS ABANDON AUTO BEFORE TRAIN WRECKS CAR SUNDAY

After their coupe had stalled between parallel tracks, four Cincinnati residents, two men and two women, jumped from the car and watched it demolished by a fast Pennsylvania passenger train at a crossing east of Cedarville between Cedarville and Selma about 4 o'clock Saturday morning.

The four people were on their way to Cleveland and, failing to negotiate a sharp turn in the highway at the crossing, the machine lurched up the right-of-way between the two main tracks. Observing the train bearing down on them, the occupants hastily leaped from the auto. The train, headed toward Xenia, struck and wrecked the car.

The train did not stop immediately, members of the train crew being unaware of the mishap. Nearing the Jasper Pike crossing at the edge of the Xenia corporation line, it was discovered the steps of the locomotive were down, after which the train was backed up for a considerable distance while the crew scanned the right-of-way in search of wreckage.

The four Cincinnatians were driven to Xenia by Edgar Little, farmer living near the crossing. Their names were not learned.

WAIVES LIMIT

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Aug. 3.—For good cause shown, Probate Judge J. D. Davis exercised his right to waive the time limit under the new marriage law and permitted a marriage license to be issued to D. E. Palmer, 53, of Baltimore, and Harriet May McCall, 55, of McCluney, recently.

Laura Ingalls, Tiny, but Nervy, Is Out to Be First of Sex to Fly Ocean

One-Hundred-Pound Aviatix, Who Deserted Footlights for Cockpit, and Holds Many of the Most Cherished Records for Flying, Gives Destination, "Le Bourget."

LAURA INGALLS AND HER PLANE

Known as the tiniest aviatix in the world, Laura Ingalls, diminutive 100-pound pilot, has set a task for herself which bears no relation to the word little or any of its synonyms. For whatever this brown-haired, comely girl from St. Louis lacks in mere weight, she makes up in nerve, as her ambition to be the first woman to fly the Atlantic solo conclusively proves. Carefully laying her plans in a manner which reminds one of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Miss Ingalls, quiet and retiring, may hop off hardly before one realizes it and set her powerful Lockheed Air Express down in Paris in a manner strikingly similar to that used by Lindy. So intent is Laura on being the first of her sex to fly from New York to Paris all alone that she has boldly written her destination as Le Bourget whenever she has been called upon recently to name her next stop. Not content with holding various stunt and long distance records for both men and women fliers, Miss Ingalls, who deserted the stage for the cockpit, is preparing at New York for the greatest adventure of her life.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—She may be tiny, but she's got big ideas. And bigness of a sort seems so incongruous with Laura Ingalls, who can only cajole the scales into crediting her with 100 pounds! But what diminutive Laura lacks in mere weight, she makes up with spunk. And with a generous helping of that all-important quality of trans-Atlantic fliers, Miss Ingalls has high hopes of being the first of her sex to fly solo from New York to Paris.

So intent is the little bundle of femininity upon winging herself over the treacherous Atlantic to fame and fortune that she has boldly written her destination as Le Bourget, famous airport at Paris, whenever she has been called upon to name her next stop.

The possibility of Laura "doing a Lindbergh" is becoming more evident as her plans progress for the epochal flight. Like the Flying Colonel, whom she is trying to emulate, she arrived in New York from the West Coast. Like him, too, she has remained almost secretive about her preparations for the great adventure. Soon after her arrival at Floyd Bennett Airport, New York, Miss Ingalls had her powerful Lockheed Air Express, with its 450 horse power motor, moved to the comparative solitude of a field at Farmingdale, L. I., so that she might test her plane and complete her plans unmolested.

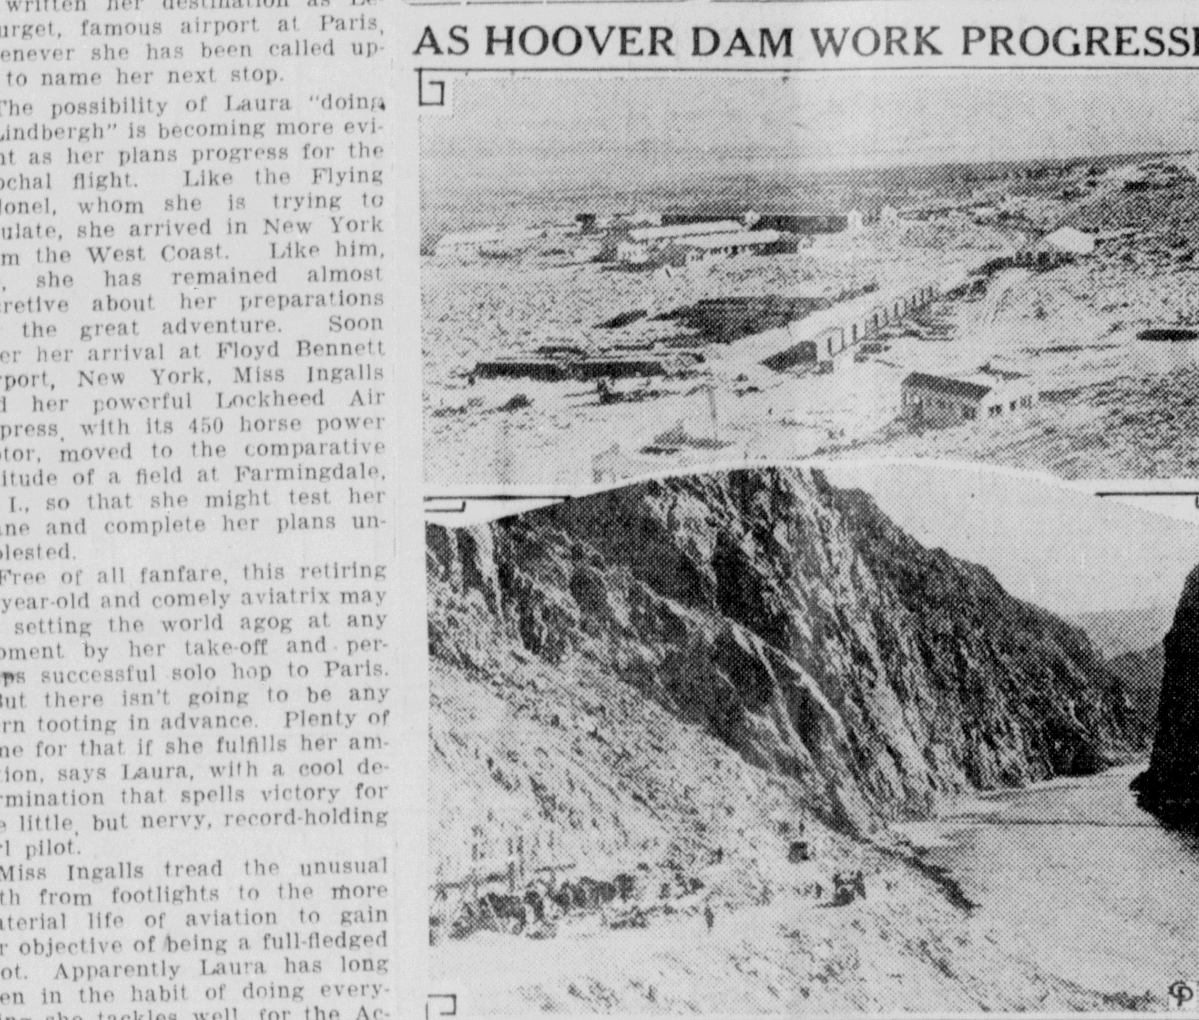

Free of all fanfare, this retiring 26-year-old and comely aviatix may be setting the world agog at any moment by her take-off and perhaps successful solo hop to Paris. But there isn't going to be any horn tooting in advance. Plenty of time for that if she fulfills her ambition, says Laura, with a cool determination that spells victory for the little, but nervy, record-holding girl pilot.

Miss Ingalls tread the unusual path from footlights to the more material life of aviation to gain her objective of being a full-fledged pilot. Apparently Laura has long been in the habit of doing everything she tackles well, for the Actors' Guild, with whom she played on Broadway, testifies to her ability as an actress. Later she became a vaudeville dancer.

Perhaps it was because of her early theatrical career and because she is small and very feminine that other fliers were reluctant at first to accord her a chance to survive the pitfalls of aviation. It wasn't long, however, until she won her transport pilot's license at twenty-five—the fifteenth woman in this country to gain that coveted bit of fame—and began to show both men and women fliers her capabilities. She has been flying four years now, having taken her initial training in the sky at Roosevelt Field, N. Y. Later she went to St. Louis, her native city, to complete her course in piloting.

Immediately upon her graduation, Miss Ingalls set as her goal a demonstration to the world that women could be as expert in the air as men. Quietly she began to prepare herself for some record-breaking stunts.

Her first was to establish a record of 344 consecutive loops, shattering all previous records for her sex. Last year, Laura bettered her own loops, coming down with 980 to her credit. A few weeks later, she again crashed into the front pages of the world with the

FAIR PATRONS WILL SEE AUTOGIRO GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

The Greene County Fair Board announced Monday that arrangements have been completed for a flying exhibition at the fair grounds Friday afternoon, August 7, of the first commercial autogiro owned in the state.

The plane will be piloted by Mrs. Blanche Wilcox Noyes, nationally known aviatix, who is expected to make three take-offs from the infield of the race course.

The Standard Oil Co., owner of the ship and sponsor of its tour, calls it the Sohlogiro. The plane has demonstrated its ability to safely fly at the low speed of twenty-miles an hour, and even to be brought to a momentary stop in mid-air. It can land and take-off on a large lawn. In mid-air, if its engine should fail, it settles safely back to earth in a practically vertical descent more slowly than a falling parachute.

Mrs. Noyes will arrive at the landing field at 1 p. m. Friday.

BURGLARS RECEIVE SLIGHT REWARD FOR TROUBLE SATURDAY

Burglars who entered the office of a grain elevator and attempted to break into the office of a lumber company in Yellow Springs Saturday night were not well repaid for their efforts.

After cutting the glass in a door to enter the office of the Welsh Grain Co. at Xenia Ave., and Dayton St., the thieves opened an unlocked safe and stole a pocketbook containing notes and checks. No money was inside. The drawer of a cash register was found standing open and an envelope containing a dollar had been ignored.

The missing pocketbook was later found near the Yellow Springs Lumber Co., Cliff St., which was also visited by burglars. The drawers broke the glass in a window but the noise aroused residents living nearby and the thieves fled without making an entrance.

Sheriff John Baughn and Deputy Walton Spahr investigated.

GARDEN FLOWER TESTS TO BE INSPECTED ON ORCHARD DAY

The tests on garden flowers, conducted by W. W. Wiggins of the Department of Horticulture at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, will be available for inspection and will be explained to those interested on the annual Orchard Day to be held at Wooster on August 21.

Problems in fertility, the value of organic matter in the soil, the value of liming soils, some variety testing, and general cultural practices on the commonly grown outdoor flowers have been under observation for the last four years. Many interesting and helpful results have been secured both for the amateur and commercial grower of flowers.

The flower plots make a pleasant place for the ladies to spend some of the time while the men are viewing the fruit and vegetable work.

BANDITS AND YEGGS, OPERATING BOLDLY, OBTAIN LARGE SUMS

Chicago Cafe Yields $5,000; Cleveland Club Is Robbed

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Three fashionably dressed bandits today burst into the Brauer Cafe in Lincoln Park, cowed the two owners and manager with their revolvers and escaped with the week-end receipts of $5,000.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Safecrackers broke into the Lotus Gardens Restaurant, a popular downtown dine and dance establishment here today and escaped with $2,647 in cash and stock certificates valued at $3,000, police said.

The robbery was discovered when the resort was opened for business by Hong Art, an employee.

Neatly wrapped in packages, the money represented part of the receipts for the week-end business, Charlie W. Tend, manager, informed police. Nearly $2,100 additional in cash was overlooked by the robbers, he said.

The bandits entered the restaurant from a side street entrance to avoid being detected, police said.

They broke the locks on four doors in an iron grating before reaching the safe.

Office of the restaurant were wrecked by the blast which had been used to force the door of the safe.

Lotus Gardens is the newest and most elaborate of several downtown Cleveland night clubs.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 3.—Three masked bandits held up the headquarters of the Yellow Taxicab Co. here early today and escaped with $2,400 in cash after lining up eight employees against the wall.

The bandits took a cab standing in front of the office and raced to their own car several blocks away.

PARTY GUEST DEAD;

Thomas Edison Steadily Improving After Sudden Collapse On Saturday

Inventor Expected To
Recover From Present Illness

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 3.—The condition of Thomas A. Edison, who is seriously ill at his home in Llewellyn Park following his unexpected collapse on Saturday, "seems to be steadily improving," it was stated in a bulletin issued shortly before 10 o'clock this morning by the noted inventor's personal physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe.

The bulletin read as follows: "Mr. Edison had a good night. He slept seven hours. He is in excellent spirits and is taking more interest in outside affairs than he has for many days. His condition seems to be steadily improving."

"Dr. Hubert S. Howe," policemen were assigned today to guard all approaches to the Edison estate. Traffic in the vicinity was diverted.

Edison is under the care of three physicians, Dr. Howe, Dr. Frederick M. Allen and Dr. William R. Williams.

A bulletin issued shortly before midnight by Dr. Howe, said: "Mr. Edison has had a good day and is now retired and resting comfortably. His condition remains satisfactory and in all probability he will have a comfortable night."

Dr. Howe, however, said the aged inventor—he is 84—was in serious condition and only after weeks of care would he be able to return to work, if at all. He said Mr. Edison's condition was "very serious" but there was no immediate danger of death and that he might make a complete recovery.

At the same time, Dr. Howe said he doubted that the inventor will "ever be out of danger."

He disclosed that the inventor's collapse on Saturday was due to his curtailment of his diet to relieve a stomach disorder believed to be due to gastric ulcers. He also is suffering from bright's disease and diabetes, but both these, he said, were under control.

Dr. Howe said he believed Mr. Edison had not been nourished properly for some time because he insisted on a diet consisting largely of milk.

Edison himself disagreed with his doctor and told his son, Charles, he felt "100 per cent better."

A dietitian, as well as a day and night nurse, were in attendance.

During Sunday Mr. Edison got up several times and walked around but soon returned to his bed.

A crowd of reporters surrounded the Edison home and were given access to the inventor's condition last night and today.

Hundreds of calls were received at the Edison home concerning the aged man's condition and he received telephone calls from his old friends, Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone.

All of the Edison family were present, except a daughter, Mrs. Oser, who was to arrive today from Norwalk, Conn.

Hopes for Mr. Edison's recovery were held high by his friends, who recalled he had gained his health from what was feared would be a fatal attack of pneumonia two years ago.

At that time he surprised everyone by sitting up in bed and smoking a big cigar.

Dr. Howe revealed that the inventor, "keenly interested in chemistry," had called him to his bedside to ask "questions about chemical analysis in his own case."

PLANNED FUNERAL

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—A few funeral arrangements were being made today for Gus Johnson, 45—just a few.

When he committed suicide yesterday, Johnson lay down in a brand new casket and started strumming a harp just after he opened the jets of a gas stove.

Johnson, who was a janitor, had attired himself in his Sunday best. He had spent $235 arranging his own funeral, even going so far as purchasing a cemetery lot.

MRS. BLACKLIDGE TO FACE NOISE CHARGE

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, former collector of internal revenue for the northern Illinois district, was to appear in court today and hear herself accused of staging noisy parties in her apartment.

Mrs. Cora Rowe, a neighbor, was expected to be the star witness against Mrs. Blackledge in the hearing before Judge Matthew Hartigan in felony court. It was Mrs. Rowe who secured a warrant against Mrs. Blackledge.

FACE MURDER TRIAL FOR BOMBING

As soon as Mrs. Mabel Cline, 43, above, and Mrs. Mildred Chambers, 21, below, alias Mildred Cline, her daughter-in-law, are able to leave the Birmingham Ala. hospital in which they are recovering from injuries received in a motor accident, they will be arraigned for their pleas to first degree murder charges. They are accused of manufacturing a bomb which killed two persons and wrecked a large pasteurizing plant which was engaged in a price war. Since Alabama has no law governing access to crime the women must stand trial on murder indictments. Three men also are under indictment in connection with the crime.

POLICE BELIEVE ARRESTS NEAR IN GANGLAND CHILD SHOOTING

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—New clues today led police to say they believed arrests were nearing in the gangster killing of a child and the wounding of four other children.

A statement of an eye-witness to the shooting of the five children while they played in a street last Tuesday evening and discovery of a shotgun, a pistol and some other key in a tenement house across the street from the scene of the shooting encouraged police to announce: "We feel we know who the gunmen are and we're sure we will eventually break the case."

Special squads of policemen patrolled the district where the shooting occurred and it was reported the threat of deportation would be used against witnesses refusing to talk. A concerted drive against criminal aliens of the section illegally in this country was also launched.

Scores of protests against the shooting of the children were voiced in pulpits on Sunday and demands were raised to drive all gangsters and racketeers from the city.

Police said they hoped to establish that one of the guns found in the apartment near the scene of the killing was used in the street shooting. Giovanni Grimaldi, owner of the five story tenement where the firearms and whiskey were found, said the apartment had recently been vacated by a tenant who had lived in it for years.

He denied any knowledge of the crime, but was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing August 11 on a charge of owning firearms. He was also held under $500 on a second charge of prohibition law violation.

The eyewitness statement was given to police after a young man telephoned and said he would talk if his identity were kept secret. He was questioned for three hours and gave valuable information, it was said.

BUSINESS SURVEY SHOWS GAINS
IN SOME LINES OVER LAST YEAR

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Although statistics do not exhibit much change in general conditions, operations at a few industries compare rather favorably with last year, the monthly business review of the fourth federal reserve district stated today.

The report, which covers Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky, noted that the sales during June in some industries, particularly in wearing apparel, exceeded the same month in 1930.

The most pleasing observance during the past month, according to the reserve bulletin, was the decided improvement in business sentiment following the announcement of President Hoover's moratorium.

Retail trade in Cincinnati, Columbus, Akron and Toledo were greater in June than a year ago, despite the sharp reduction in prices, it was said.

Very low prices on farm products in agricultural communities have proved rather discouraging, but bumper crop prospects of fruit, grains and other products partly alleviate the pessimistic tendencies, according to the report.

ELEVEN LOSE LIVES IN AUTO ACCIDENTS ALONE OVER SUNDAY

Five Toledoans Die; Heat, Drownings, Take Heavy Toll

By I. N. S.

With Toledo reporting five fatalities to top the list, automobile and train accidents, heat prostrations, drownings and suicides in Ohio took at least eighteen lives over the week-end, a survey by International News Service showed today.

Automobile accidents reaped the greatest harvest of victims, the survey showed. Eleven of the eighteen fatalities were caused from injuries received in automobile smash-ups.

At Shelby Wesley Seidell and his wife were almost instantly killed when they drove their automobile into the path of a Big Four passenger train. The approach of the train it was believed, was hidden from the view of the Seidells by a driving rain.

The five traffic victims at Toledo were: Louis Ring, 40; Hubert M. Woods, 40, of Perryburg; Jennie Noel, 24, negro, of Fremont; an unidentified man, about 40 and Arba W. McGinley, 61, of Toledo.

An East Toledo youth, Lawrence Stockmaster, 22, was drowned while bathing in a pool at Defiance.

A 20-year-old husband was drowned trying to save his 19-year-old wife when she fell into the Scioto River near Columbus.

The husband, Peter Ballotti, ran from his car and leaped into the river but drowned almost at once because he could not swim. His wife, Helen Ballanger Ballotti, was rescued by John Roy, who had accompanied the Ballottis on a fishing trip.

When her car was thrown into a ditch, Hazel West, 25, of Chillicothe, was killed, and two men companions were injured. Howard Miller, 21, and John Willison, 25, of Washington C. H., were injured.

They were driving from Washington C. H. to Chillicothe when their machine was sideswiped by another auto.

An inquiry was under way today into the death of William Murphy.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—With legislators eliminated by statute as candidates, Governor George White was about decided upon the four appointments he will make to the parole board set up by the eighth general assembly. It was learned here today.

The ethical question of the eligibility of a legislator to serve on a board he helps create presented itself to Welfare Director John McSwainey and the governor after eleven members of the legislature applied for positions on the parole board. The salary of members of the parole board will be $6,000 annually.

Replacing the present two-member board of clemency, the new parole board will take office August 11.

FAILURE TO CHANGE
PROHIBITION LAWS
OF STATE CLAIMED

Parties Should Drop Wet Cause W. C. T. U. Statement Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Both Republican and Democratic parties will be "strongly dry" in 1932, if national political leaders heed the results of the wet drive in forty-one state legislatures that met this year, the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union announced today.

The dry organization boasted that the campaign to "smash prohibition" by state is a fizzle. It declared every movement to repeal state prohibition laws had ended in failure and chided the wets for confining their efforts to either petitioning congress for repeal or passing "non-mandatory referenda" which have no effect on existing law.

"If national political leaders heed the results of the wet drive in the forty-one state legislatures that met this year, both the Republican and Democratic parties will be strongly dry in 1932," the union announced. "The campaign to smash prohibition by state is a fizzle. Nothing was repealed or modified—not even a medicinal liquor law."

"The fate of the wet drive this year convinced the W. C. T. U. that political misfortune lurks in repeal or modification. Nearly 7,000 state legislators, fresh from the people, met this year; considered 115 wet measures, and adjourned without modifying or repealing one line of any prohibition law."

The dry organization said the legislatures have adopted only eleven wet measures, all confined to six states. These measures, it reported, merely called for referenda on prohibition or asked congress to do something about repeal, but did not touch local enforcement acts. Five of the eleven were adopted in New York state, the others in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

"Wet measures in these states do not encourage national candidates to run on wet planks," the union added "especially when it is realized that wet leaders in wet Connecticut and wet Rhode Island were forced to abandon the adoption of non-mandatory resolutions. The New Jersey wet legislative program failed completely."

"It appears to the W. C. T. U. that the drive against prohibition has turned into a device for staging non-mandatory smoke screen referenda under which small time politicians can run for office and avoid discussing their real qualifications."

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—Harry Burnstein, 37, former Glouster businessman, attempted suicide here today by drinking iodine, according to police reports. Rushed to St. Francis Hospital, Burnstein's condition was reported to be critical.

ROUND WORLD PLANE IN SIBERIAN CITY; TOKIO PLANE IN AIR

Lindberghs Rest In Manitoba; Routes Cross At Nome

By I. N. S.

Airplane motors whirled in widely scattered portions of the globe today, marking man's tireless conquest of time and space.

Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., round-the-world fliers seeking to break the record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, landed at Khabarovsk in Siberia according to word received in Tokio.

Reg Robbins and Harold Jones, the Texas airmen, were believed well on their way to Tokio after a successful refueling at Fairbanks, Alaska.

At Churchill, Manitoba, an out of the way Hudson Bay Trading Post, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh waited to take off for Baker Lake, the next stop on the leisurely vacation flight to Tokio of Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Russell Boardman and John Polando, success New York to Istanbul fliers, continued studying a flying route further into the Orient, with definite plans still to be announced.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 3.—The Texan named monoplane "Fort Worth" today was believed well started on its dangerous dash over Bering Sea on the last leg of its non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokyo.

Although neither the "Fort Worth" nor its tri-motored refueling ship had been sighted here, it was believed that Rosalind Robbins and Harold Jones, pilots of the Tokyo bound plane, had taken advantage of better flying weather south of here and followed the southern shoreline for Norton sound to the sea.

TOKYO, Aug. 3.—Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn, American round-the-world fliers, brought their red monoplane Miss Veedol down on the landing field at Khabarovsk, Siberia, at 3:50 p. m. (1:50 a. m. Columbus time) today, according to a message from Khabarovsk.

Khabarovsk, on the Amur River, was the last scheduled stopping place in Asia for the world fliers. They had made the 1,500 mile flight from Chita, west of Lake Balkal to Khabarovsk in eighteen hours and twenty minutes, having hopped from Chita at 5:30 p. m. yesterday (10:30 a. m. Columbus time). In this time they flew over some of the wildest and most inhospitable territory of the world.

After a brief halt at Khabarovsk for refueling the fliers planned to push on across the sea of Okotsk and Bering Sea to Nome, Alaska, their next scheduled stop.

ROBBERY SUSPECT
SHOT, CAPTURED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Believed to be one of three youths who held up and robbed a storekeeper of $40, a youth giving his name as Spencer Dixon, 17, was shot twice in the left shoulder and arm today by Philip Muloff, a confectionary store owner, according to police.

The youth was taken to Charity Hospital where attaches said he would recover.

Dixon, who was identified by Nathan Pollack, the holdup victim, as one of the robber trio, denied any connection with the robbery, police said. Muloff, summoned by Pollack's wife, fired five shots at the fleeing robbers as they fled down an alley. A police radio cruiser found Dixon lying a block from the scene of the shooting.

OIL INDUSTRY GLAD AS PRICES BOOSTED

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 3.—Another note of optimism for the Pennsylvania-Oil industry was sounded today when the second price boost in as many weeks was announced here by the Joseph Seep purchasing agency.

National Transit was boosted fifteen cents per barrel to $1.70; Southwest, fifteen cents to $1.55; Eureka, fifteen cents to $1.45; and Buckeye fifteen cents to $1.30.

Coincidental with this announcement, the Tidewater Oil Co. posted fifteen cent per barrel increases in the Allegheny and Bradford fields, bringing the price to $1.95 per barrel.

COWES REGETTA
RACE CALLED OFF

COWES, Eng., Aug. 3.—Today's race on the programme of the Cowes regatta was cancelled this morning when King George announced the withdrawal of his yacht Britannia.

The king withdrew the Britannia because one of the members of her crew was swept overboard and drowned when a wave struck the yacht early today.

TWO WOMEN HELPED DIVA'S DREAMS COME TRUE

Two women who aided Anna Case (the present Mrs. Clarence Mackay), grand opera diva, to make her dreams come true are Miss Catherine Updyck, left, her first music teacher in South Branch, N. J., and Mrs. Dewitt Bowman, next, whose husband paid for her first music lessons; the little village store once run by Mr. Bowman, is pictured, right. Residents of the village still remember Mrs. Mackay as she looked 25 years ago as she is pictured second from right.

Star Gazing

Lil Dagover

Beautiful German stage and screen star on her way to Hollywood to charm Americans. Her first will be a spy picture (of course!).

MEET TWO NEW MOVIE ACTORS—AND THEIR WIVES

Can you identify these two husky young men and their wives? Give up? All right—at left is Don Miller, ex-Horseman of Notre Dame, and Mrs. Miller. At right is John Law, one-time Notre Dame football captain, and Mrs. Law. Miller, Law and nine other former Irish gridders are in Hollywood to participate in making a movie, based on the Notre Dame team.

When Sen. Davis Was Gassed

This remarkable photograph shows healthy (unhealthy for the recipients) rights and lefts being tossed with abandon during the riotous meeting of two factions of the United Mine Workers of America in biennial convention at Scranton, Pa. U. S. Senator James J. Davis (insert) was among those gassed when policemen hurled tear gas bombs into the seething mass of disorder. The photographer who got this picture, incidentally, also received several blows meant for others.

Roper in Politics

Former Football Coach W. W. Roper may buck the William S. Vare political line in Philadelphia, as a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination. Former Mayor J. Hampton Moore is the choice of the Vare faction, which has dominated Philadelphia politics for many years. Above, a photo of Roper as he looked as Princeton coach.

Former Spy, Monk

Ignatius Tribich Lincoln (above), former member of the British Parliament and war-time spy, has been made a Buddhist monk at Peiping, China. His name is now Chao Kung and 12 circular scars on his shaven head indicate he has gone through the painful burning ceremony which is intended to prove a candidate for the Buddhist priesthood has become dead to all pain. Lincoln was arrested in New York in 1915 as a spy. He escaped but was recaptured in 1916, following which he was extradited to England.

As Budapest Hailed Fliers

Acclaimed by more than 50,000 residents of Budapest, Hungary, when they arrived at the capital after nearly reaching the city on their flight from Harbor Grace to Budapest, Captains Endres and Magyar are shown in their automobile as they were driven through the streets to receive the tumultuous welcome of their countrymen. Their plane, "Justice for Hungary," took them within 20 miles of their goal, when lack of fuel forced them down.

UTAH AGGIE QUEEN IS SOPHOMORE

Being considered the fairest of the fair at State Agricultural college, Logan, Utah, Miss Marjorie Vernon, a sophomore, has been elected the 1931 queen of the "Aggies." She was given a full page in the school publication following her nomination.

Happy Son Made It

Happy that her son, Hugh Herndon, Jr., together with Clyde Pangborn, successfully negotiated the treacherous Atlantic Ocean and safely landed in England, Mrs. Dixon Boardman, the daring airman's mother, is shown in New York listening to radio reports of Hugh's progress on his "round-the-world flight."

Wins Beauty Crown

Dorothy Popp (above), 18, was crowned queen of Rumanian beauties in Chicago and is now impatiently awaiting the national Rumanian beauty contest which will be held in Detroit Labor Day. She has high hopes of winning the coveted title of the most beautiful Rumanian girl in the U. S. and thus capture the prize trip to her native land.

MEN MUST BE SLAVES TO FASHION!

Whether it's man's modesty or just his stubbornness, the clothes he wears these stifling summer days average five pounds heavier than those which cover members of the weaker sex. T. M. McKeown of Chicago finds to his dismay that his street clothes weigh six and three-quarter pounds, while Virginia Green seems happy to learn that she carries only a pound and three-quarters of "excess baggage." Maybe some folk would say that's not enough.

Likes 'Em Big

What little Joey Thebault, six-year-old wonder of the golf links at Pawtucket, R. I., lacks in stature and weight he makes up with his "tiny" caddy, George W. Graham, who carries around 300 pounds besides Joey's clubs. Joey, who promises to be a second Bobby Jones, some say, is entered in the Junior Tournament at the Agawam Club, Providence, R. I. He's shown with "Tiny."

Last Word in U.S.—Built Ships

The new S. S. President Hoover of the Dollar Line, heralded as the last word in American ship construction, is shown proudly sailing up New York bay to her pier for the first visit to Gotham after being commissioned. The ship sails on her maiden trip 'round the world Aug. 6. Captain Fred Anderson (insert), veteran skipper, is in command of this newest $3,000,000 floating palace of the American Merchant Marine. The President Hoover is the largest American-built liner and will accommodate 1,260 passengers.

X-RAY MONKEY FOR DIAMOND RING

Memories of stomach pumps probably will prove stronger than the glitter of diamonds in the future, for Jackie, pet monkey, owned by Mrs. Gertrude Dennis, Inglewood, Cal. When Mrs. Dennis recently missed her $750 diamond ring, she rushed Jackie to a hospital and an X-ray revealed the ring in his stomach. He returned home later, wiser but hungrier. Photo shows, left to right, Nurse Marie Steel, Mrs. Dennis and Dr. Dean, with Jackie on operating table.

Proud of His Dad

Three-year-old John Polando, Jr., is shown attentively listening and speaking into the radio at his home in Lynn, Mass., about his famous father, who, with Russell Boardman, landed in Istanbul, Turkey, after a long-distance, non-stop, record-breaking flight of 5,000 miles from New York. John, Jr., was so proud of daddy that he hit the photographer over the head with a tennis racquet to prove his enthusiasm.

Probe His "Idea"

Since Chicago appointed an official greeter, Frank B. Lacy (above) has developed a supplementary idea which he thinks is great, but which the State's Attorney is not so sure about. Frank's scheme was to conduct an unofficial, but supplemental city greeting service, the crux of which is entertainment of visiting tired business men by beautiful party girls. Apparently the proverbial T. B. M. aren't going to get a break.

Hath Music Charm for Cows?

That music hath charms to soothe the savage breast is well known, but whether modern jazz will supply Bossy with the incentive to produce more milk is a mooted point. Whether or not to speed up the championship milking contest with jazz at the Los Angeles County Fair is being put to the test at Pomona, Calif., during preparations for the event, which opens in September. Lucille Gates, the violinist, is endeavoring to get the bovine being milked by Ruth Decker to produce more milk as music smites her ears. If this test is successful, a band will play for the milking contest finale.

LLOYD GEORGE GAINS LONDON, Aug. 3.—The condition of David Lloyd George, Liberal leader and former wartime premier of Great Britain, continued to progress satisfactorily today, according to his physicians.

GIRLS ROUT BANDIT DETROIT.—George Walters, 37, can thank his two bottle tossing daughters for saving him from possible death at the hands of a youthful would-be bandit. The youth entered Walters' grocery store and robbed the cash register of $87. He ordered Walters and his two daughters, Mildred, 16, and Mary, 13, against the wall. Before a shot could be fired, the sisters swung into action with bottles on the store's shelves as ammunition. The bandit fled.

SENTENCE TWO HERE FOR DRIVING AUTOS WHEN INTOXICATED

Two autoists, pleading guilty to operating autos while intoxicated, were each fined $100 and costs, sentenced to thirty days in jail and had their driving rights revoked for six months by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Monday morning. Both drivers were involved in minor traffic mishaps.

The motorists, both arrested Sunday by police, were Frederick Hartsock, 27, R. R. No. 1, Xenia, and John Ballard, 50, of S. Elm St. Hartsock's car, police say, collided with a traffic post at "Five Points". He was fined $100 and costs and given a suspended thirty-day jail sentence for carrying concealed weapons last June 10. Ballard was arrested following a collision with an auto of L. S. Barnes on Fairground Road.

PLEADS GUILTY, FINED Charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, Charles Ellison, 24, of 3 Owens St., was fined $25 and cost and committed to jail in default of payment by Judge Smith. He pleaded guilty.

FORMER XENIAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Funeral services for Mrs. Eugene O. Barr, former Xenian, who died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rosebloom, Washington C. H., Thursday morning, were held at her parents' home Saturday afternoon and burial was made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

Mrs. Barr was the wife of E. O. Barr, former mathematics and manual training instructor at Central High School here. During their residence in Xenia they lived on Hill St. For the past four years Mr. and Mrs. Barr had resided in Middletown where Mr. Barr taught manual training in the high school. Mrs. Barr had been in ill health for some time but had been taken to her parents' home only a day previous to her death.

Besides her husband and parents, she is survived by a brother, Glenn Rosebloom, Sabina.

HURT WHEN THROWN FROM AUTO'S SEAT

Clarence Baumbaster, 45, this city, is confined in McClellan Hospital suffering from painful injuries received in an automobile accident on the Upper Bellvue Pike early Sunday afternoon. He is suffering from a slight concussion of the brain, a broken nose, wounds on the face and cuts over his entire body.

Baumbaster was riding on the seat of a "make-shift" automobile and is said to have fallen off the seat when the machine struck a bump in the road. Name of owner and driver of the automobile was not learned. Baumbaster was rendered unconscious at the time but regained consciousness after being removed to the hospital.

FOUND LOVE, LOST IT, FOUND IT AGAIN

In this flippant age Natalie Dudley is an unusual young girl. Serious about love, she falls hopelessly for the "man of her dreams." Chance nearly gives him to her, but ironical fate steps in to snatch him away and she despairs of winning him back. What happens to her? For the answer read Ethelda Bedford's new serial story, "Broadway Bride," the best newspaper serial romance of the year. It begins tomorrow in the Gazette.

XENIA'S WHITE WAY LIGHTING SYSTEM LAUNCHED SATURDAY

Xenia's new White Way street lighting system flashed on at 8:25 o'clock Saturday.

Although it inaugurated a new era in the progress of the city, introducing metropolitan illumination methods to Xenia's business district, there was no ceremony connected with the change.

Employees of the Dayton Power and Light Co., had lowered and removed the overhead intersection lights Saturday, clearing the way for the new system. As darkness enveloped the city Saturday evening an employee in the company's sub-station here, threw a switch that turned on the lamps in the fifty-two new boulevard lights along Main and Detroit Sts.

Bringing mid-block illumination to the city, Xenia Saturday night presented the brightest appearance in its history. It represented a far cry from the days when "lamp posts" last lighted the city, being illumined by gas lamps atop iron standards at the street corners. The new boulevard lights are on tall standards that allow for a range of reflection that eliminates "dark spots" between lights.

The new lights attracted favorable comment from the usual Saturday night shopping crowd.

New four-way traffic signal devices were placed in effect Friday and operated Saturday and Sunday with motorists gradually becoming accustomed to them. Many, forgetting the lights, ran through red signals, but there were no arrests as police permitted drivers to become acquainted with the new system.

BANDITS WHO ROB MAN, STRIKE WIFE

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—Struck over the head with the butt of a revolver when two thugs robbed her husband, James Murphy, of $235, Mrs. Emma Murphy was reported recovering at her home today.

Confronted by the two robbers as he drove into the garage at the rear of his home, Murphy handed over the money while his wife was slugged as she attempted to get out of the car. Angered by the attack on his wife, Murphy ran after the car in which the bandit pair was escaping and was fired upon by one of the robbers. He was uninjured.

SEVENTEEN DAYS IN JULY SHOW MERCURY READINGS OVER 90

Rumors that the weather was distressingly warm during July are officially confirmed in the monthly meteorological report of Weatherman Ernest L. Harner, disclosing there were only two cloudy days and six that were partly cloudy throughout the entire month. The remainder were clear and hot.

The maximum temperature was 100 degrees, reached July 16, setting a new heat record for the year, but during the last week the temperatures have not been far below this mark. The precipitation totalled 3.98 inches. The maximum and minimum temperatures for each day of July follows:

BLUE LAW REPEALED IS NOW EFFECTIVE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—Repealing the old "Blue Law," the Marshall Bill legalizing Sunday movies went into effect today.

The expiration of the ninety day referendum period was the signal to ministerial associations in several cities to begin campaigns for ordinances against Sunday theatrical performances.

As finally passed, the bill by Senator L. L. Marshall (R) of Cleveland legalized Sunday afternoon shows but gave local communities the privilege of local option on the question.

SEMINARY RECTOR DIES LATROBE, Pa., Aug. 3.—The Very Rev. Ambrose Kohlbeck, O. S. B., S. T. D., Rector of St. Vincent's Seminary, here, died today, after an illness of many years. He was attended when death came by the Rev. Girard Bridge, and brothers Alfonso Thumel and Thomas Percocy.

"What can you expect of those Dudley girls?" the gossiping back-fence brigade asked, pulling down the corners of its mouth.

Before the girls was adventure, glamour, freedom.

For Nita—perhaps—success on the stage. To romantic, sober-minded Natalie comes a sincere love—found, lost and found again. Is the girl of today as content and sincere in her affection as this pretty Broadway bride?

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit.—Ecclesiastes, 1, 14.

FEWER DICTATORS

Carlos Ibanez was an efficiency boy, who chiseled his way up from a captaincy in the Chilean army to the presidency of Chile. A popular emote has just let him down hard. The Chileans appear not to have resented the iron rod with which this military dictator ruled them, as long as times were good. They revolted against it when the man who wielded it failed to extract pork chops from the clouds. Carlos Ibanez, when he fled across the border into Argentina, was as truly a victim of economic depression as the capital that recently took flight from Germany.

Chile is one of the most enlightened, energetic, up-and-doing countries in South America. Virtually all of its 4,500,000 people are of European origin. They are a proud race, with aristocratic traditions. As might be expected, a few fine old patrician families have dominated the government during most of Chile's century and a quarter of independence. As might also be expected, a number of evils eventually found their way into the administration. Sinecures and nepotism were among the most costly of them to the country.

Against such things Captain Ibanez laid a deliberate lance, agitated against them, worked his way up to where he was able to dictate the personnel of the government, seized the presidency, and later had his possession of it regularized for a six-year term dating from 1927. A drastic house-cleaning followed the establishment of his military dictatorship. Sinecures in the civil service were abolished, salaries were cut and other reforms and economics effected. "The people" at last had a champion of their interests at the head of affairs.

The most significant aspect of the popular movement that ousted him is not that it marked a return to civilian government in Chile; but rather that the populace turned against a man who apparently had sought diligently to serve it. The same thing happened in Argentina last year, when Hipolito Irigoyen, a confirmed radical, was deposed from the presidency. Our South American friends have a useful contempt for constitutional niceties, when their leaders fail to deliver the goods. They do not allow the latter to stand upon the order of their going. They boot them across the border. Carlos Ibanez will now have time to reflect that inability to accomplish the impossible in terms of prosperity is the least pardonable of political sins.

AS THEY SOW

Gunmen as wanton murderers of little children are a new development of the Twentieth century, even in these gang-ridden United States. The brutes are worse than their predecessors of other days and other lands who threw tiny bodies from spearpoint to spearpoint in sport, for those semi-savages at least acted in accordance with the habit and temper of their times, and generally they had prejudice or war passion to urge them on.

Yet what has happened on East One Hundred and Seventh street, New York city, is no more than a natural and inevitable consequence of the long tolerance the killing gangster has been enjoying from American society, police and courts. Something of the sort was bound to occur sooner or later. And worse things will happen unless the nation rouses itself and takes the corrective measures which are necessary.

STILL POPULAR

A good language cannot be kept down. Yale recently dropped Greek and Latin as obligatory subjects; but now comes word from Harvard that twice as many of its students are concentrating on the classics as did a decade ago. A committee that has been investigating the status of Latin in the United States reports that more boys and girls are studying it than are studying all other foreign languages put together.

Why should that be, when dead languages butter no bread? A tutor at Harvard hinted the answer, when he told the Classical club of the university that its members "talked better" than the general run of college men. Their speech was smoother and more finished. Their writing was easier to read.

The explanation of this linguistic superiority is obvious. The English language is rooted in Latin and Greek. A knowledge of the latter tongue gives one confidence in handling English that aids fluency and precision. Acquaintance with Latin is not indispensable to the correct and easy use of English; but it provides one of the shortest routes to that goal. One does not even have to go to college to speak and write good English. Abraham Lincoln is a "classic example" of the possibility of mastering English without the assistance of the classics.

The "polish" which the classicists claim for those who are on speaking terms with their muse is not to be lightly regarded; but here, again, shadow may be mistaken for substance. The rugged style that has come from a purely Anglo-Saxon idiom may carry one further in this rough and tumble world than ability to quote Cicero in the original will. Correct speech is like correct clothes. Wretched English grates on the educated ear as a ragged suit does on the eye. The continued esteem of Greek and Latin in at least one great American university is desirable no more for the literatures they unlock than for the influence a knowledge of them exerts on our own language and literature.

Kitch hiking is one of those diversions that might be permissible if the country were still simple and honest; or maybe we should say still honest, for there are times when it still seems simple enough and to spare.

The discovery that the last five cruisers added to the United States navy are defective ought to be a consolation to those patriotic citizens who fear that this country is over-armed on the seas.

We are still waiting anxiously for a sight of the child who was made miserably by the possession of a penny bank.

MY NEW YORK

—BY JAMES ASWELL—

NEW YORK. — Natives of a city invariably insist that it is ridiculously simple to find one's way about in the place. It is apparently somehow discreditable for a community to be laid out in a manner confusing to strangers. I have even met Bostonians who insisted that the street maze in that city was built upon a simplicity lucid to a child of four.

In New York, of course, old residents ridicule the idea of an intelligent stranger becoming confused. My own stupidity in the matter of locating quickly a desired house number appears, after four years, to be incurable. And this in the city which has been touted as the easiest in the world to navigate without guess-work!

Indeed, my slow-wittedness becomes all the more pathetic when it is remembered that for the avenues it is merely necessary to take the address number, cancel the last figure and divide by two; after which a key number is added and you are practically ringing the doorbell. If you know the key number, that is.

Yesterday I had occasion to visit a building in upper Broadway. The taxi driver nonchalantly flipped down his meter "flag" and sped away. I called out that I was sorry I didn't know what cross-town street was nearest my destination. "That's o. k., mister," he replied cheerily. "You don't need to know that. It's easy after a few years' hacking."

Whereupon he delivered me a lecture so replete with mathematical seasoning that it would have enabled me to pass my college board examination in algebra when I took it that fourth time. He pointed out that for addresses on Broadway, north of Fourteenth Street, you subtract 30; for addresses on Riverside Drive, divide the house number by 10 and add 72; for Central Park West, the number must be divided by 10 and 60 added. An so on.

At the corner of Broadway and 54th Street he pulled sharply to the curb. When he glanced back to turn his face bore a worried look. "I guess I figured wrong, mister. I won't charge you for the extra ride. It must be 45th Street—or maybe it's 15th, come to think!"

WITH A FAST CAMERA

The "gyp" taxis and the racketeer public porter are under fire from the Hotel Association. . . . The latter are called "steerers" in the Broadway lingo and assure incoming passengers at railroad terminals that the hotel they have chosen is either full up or being torn down, suggesting another—and probably ninth rate—place. . . . But the high price cabs are dwindling rapidly; they were all ancient wrecks, anyway. . . .

New Yorkers have been surprised that Prince Alexis Obolensky is going around to teas and parties so short a time after his daughter, the Princess Troubetzkoy, flung herself to death from the top of Eiffel Tower. . . . But that's the stoic attitude of his people. . . .

Sign in the window of a tailoring shop in 44th Street: "Exclusive but Not Expensive." Tailors and other small shopkeepers can buy these little cards, lettered in gilt, by the dozen, containing such thoughts as "A Pleased Customer Is Our Best Advertisement" and so on. The Russian who runs that 44th Street shop put up his batch the first day of business and his knowledge of English discovered nothing odd about the extra one which said: "If You Like These Cards Send for Our Complete Catalogue" . . .

PASSING OF THE TREES

BANISHMENT OF FOUR INDICTAES ARGENTINA IS NEAR REVOLUTION

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—With recent tidings that General Uriburu's dictatorship at Buenos Aires had ordered Dr. Marcelo T. de Alvear, Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, Dr. Carlos Noel (every Latin-American of the slightest consequence either is a general or a doctor of some sort) and Dr. Jose Tamborino out of Argentina, all doubt vanished that the River Plate republic is on the verge of an explosion of major proportions.

Dr. de Alvear was the country's last president before Dr. Hipolito Irigoyen, whose administration was overthrown by a revolution under General Uriburu's leadership. Dr. Pueyrredon has held nearly every cabinet post in the republic and formerly was Argentina's ambassador in Washington. Both are multi-millionaires. Dr. Noel once was mayor of Buenos Aires. Dr. Tamborino, though less known abroad than Dr. de Alvear, Pueyrredon and Noel, is a very influential politician among his own countrymen, nevertheless.

A fair parallel in the United States would be the locking up (banishment not being the fashion here) of Calvin Coolidge, William G. McAdoo, Big Bill Thompson and the like for the sake of getting some big money into the comparison, say, James Couzens—not on any particular charge, but simply as troublemakers.

Of the four men against whom Dictator Uriburu's decrees of exile was pronounced, Dr. de Alvear, Pueyrredon and Noel would hardly rate in this country as even moderate liberals.

It is true that they have long been identified with what is known in Argentina as the radical party, but radicalism there is as frequent as a mere label at the Republican and Democratic desks here. Here, Drs. de Alvear and Pueyrredon, especially, with their vast wealth, never have been so much as "pinks."

Now, the Argentines are the flower of the Latin American peoples. They do not put up long with despotisms and it was not long before Dictator Uriburu found himself with revolutionary troubles of his own on his hands. Dispatches have described them as occurring only in the provinces of Corrientes and Entre Rios and the territories of Misiones, Formosa and Chaco, which really are somewhat remote and thin-settled. Mention, however, also has been made lately of the declaration of martial law in the province of Santa Fe, and Santa Fe province (I ran a farm there once myself) bears about the same relation to Argentina that the combined states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania bear to the remainder of this country.

If, here in the United States, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania turned so ugly that it was found necessary to put them under martial law, and then ex-President Coolidge, William G. McAdoo, Big Bill Thompson and Senator Couzens had to be banished to keep them quiet, one doubtless would pronounce the situation pretty threatening.

A revolution in Chile is not so important as one in Argentina. The Chileans, on an average (among the exceptions are some very fine folk), are nothing to compare with the Argentines, who (with the Uruguayans) but there are only about 1,000,000 of them) are the pick of the new world peoples south of the Rio Grande.

Buenos Aires alone is no trifling. It is the second Latin city in the world.

Where Dictator Uriburu seems to have erred was in mistaking anti-Irigoyen sentiment for anti-radical sentiment. Thinking to legalize the position he had grabbed for himself, he called another election—but (do and behold!) the radicals won again.

Thereupon the dictator announced that election didn't count and stayed on the job.

Now, the Argentines are the flower of the Latin American peoples. They do not put up long with despotisms and it was not long before Dictator Uriburu found himself with revolutionary troubles of his own on his hands. Dispatches have described them as occurring only in the provinces of Corrientes and Entre Rios and the territories of Misiones, Formosa and Chaco, which really are somewhat remote and thin-settled. Mention, however, also has been made lately bands—whom they had never thought of as brutes—and took up arms against the Common Foe. I think the women felt like noble, direct descendants of that wonderful tribe of Amazons who killed any man who attempted to explore their country. I know the men felt puzzled and irritated and unfairly abused.

Well, what's happened to this Sex Solidarity? It seems to have gone out like Couesim and Oh-you-kid! and Making the World Safe for Democracy, and you never hear anything about Embattled Womanhood and Man-the-Simon-Legree any more.

On what great battlefield, on what tumultuous day, did the host of womanhood meet the villainous foe and win a glorious victory or go down in honorable defeat? I don't know. I didn't hear about it. It's not in any of the history books I've read. . . .

All I know is that it's years since I've heard any woman mention Sex Solidarity. Somewhere it seems, there was a fraternizing between the entrenched armies—and then there was a truce—and then a conference of the foes—and someone spoke a little common sense—and it was secretly agreed that men and women are not eternal enemies but just People—just Human Beings who are happy and troubled and hopeful and trying to do the best they can together.

That's what happened to Sex Solidarity. It was like the word that aviators write with smoke in the skies and a strong wind of truth blew it clean away.

How Doctor Discovered Germ of Ill

Tuberculosis

Doctor Robert Koch was a young doctor in Germany established in general practice when the scientific world was aflame with the news that germs had been discovered as the cause of certain diseases. Only a few diseases were at first announced as being in this class—anthrax, a disease of sheep occasionally transmitted to man, being one of the first that Pasteur, the great French scientist, proved to be of this nature. But all the fevers and contagious diseases were suspected, and every doctor who had a microscope was trying to make a discovery.

Young Doctor Koch was no exception. In spite of the fact that his wife kept nagging at him to build up a big practice, he began studying the exudates from sick people under the microscope. Finally he made a great discovery—the cause of the infection of wounds and of the infection of women after childbirth. Then he tackled tuberculosis, and in 1882 was able to announce that he had discovered the germ which causes it—the tubercle bacillus.

This was a great step in advance because doctors were then able to decide for the first time whether a disease was actually tuberculosis or not. Many thought certain bone diseases were of the same nature as consumption—tuberculosis of the lungs. Now they were able to prove it by demonstrating the tubercle bacillus in the scrapings from the diseased bone. Thus it became known that tuberculosis affects nearly every structure in the body—the lungs, lymph nodes in the neck, bones and joints, and kidneys, being the most frequent sites.

It was also proved that animals have tuberculosis. But each animal seems to be susceptible to a peculiar strain of the disease. Thus birds have avian tuberculosis and cattle have bovine tuberculosis.

Since cows have tuberculosis, the question arose whether an infected cow would give off tubercle bacilli in the milk, and whether this would cause disease in the human beings who drank it.

Koch said "no" very emphatically. He declared that bovine tuberculosis never caused human tuberculosis. And since his authority was very great, he was the original discoverer of the germ, his views were accepted.

Not by everyone, however. When technical methods allowed people to differentiate the bovine from the human strains better, it was proved first that bovine tuberculosis in milk could set up the disease in children—in the bones and joints, the intestines and the lymph nodes of the neck. Finally in 1911, two French bacteriologists presented a series of cases of consumption—tuberculosis of the lungs caused by the bovine strain of the bacillus.

So today we know that cows can transmit tuberculosis to man in milk. What preventive measures are carried out will be explained tomorrow.

Shall Wife Get Divorce?

—BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

"Dear Virginia Lee: What do you think of a married man who has been married twenty some years and has a family nearly grown, and has turned his wife down for another married woman? Always talks about the other woman to his wife, bragging how keen the other one looks, and has said he was sorry he ever met his wife; and has gone dance crazy, too, and wants to be a traveling man and quit the farm?"

He claims his wife is jealous of him and thinks she don't want him to talk to other women and have a good time with them, and is always complaining about everything and is crabbed around home. And quick as someone comes he is jolly, and when they leave is the same thing over.

"His wife isn't jealous and she is a good woman and is always ready to help him every time he hollers for help, and always does her part since they were married."

"Will you please give your advice if you think she ought to stay with him or get a divorce and let him be free. He wants one and don't want one."

"I think if the wife loves her husband and doesn't want to divorce him she should exercise the almost super human patience with which wives seem to be gifted, and meet his complaints with silence. A great many people, both men and women, go through a discontented period when they are the age your husband is, and the family has to stand it just as they do the children's mumps and measles. Sometimes they do the very unwise thing of making themselves so unbearable to the mate that said mate divorces them, and they marry someone else who seems very desirable. And they live unhappily ever after, wishing someone had hit them over the head with a paddle or something before they let them make such a wreck of their lives."

If you can possibly stand your husband so, you can't spend him as he deserves. If there is any possible way to let him go and try the salesmanship job and let you run the farm without him, let him go. He will come back so chastened that you will have no further trouble.

Keep yourself up and laugh off his ill temper if you can, or pay no attention to it. That is not easy, I know. Tease him about his girl friends and tell him, laughingly, that you are thinking of getting another man. If you act as if you didn't care about his remarks and actions he won't get much fun out of making them.

He's trying to make you jealous, of course. Don't let him.

"Dear Virginia: Just a word to these little girls who write and say 'I can't forget him.' Perhaps after I tell my little story, they'll say, 'I can and I will.'"

"I'm just a little girl who lost her heart to the wrong boy. Believing him to be true, I trusted him and adored the very ground he walked upon. He led me to believe he loved me, too, but I soon found out that he was going with another girl to whom he was engaged."

"I knew and realized that it was up to me to fade from the picture, although I loved him. I said words. When I met him it was difficult not to smile and be nice to him. Yet all the time I vowed, 'You must forget him!' It was hard to turn down his dates, as he still wanted to go out with me."

"Soon other bad remarks were made about him, so every time I wanted to think of him I would remember the song, 'He's not worth your tears.'"

"He was married June 6 and I did not think a thing about it, but was happy for him."

"So you see I did forget, although it certainly seemed impossible at first. Remember, Where there's a will there's a way. Best wishes ever, Virginia. Happy Days."

Foot Troubles May Be Helped

—BY GLADYS GLAD—

The girl who plods along with heavy, weary steps, whose gait bears an uncomfortably close resemblance to that humorous and labored shuffle of Stepin Fetchit, certainly does not present any picture of grace and youthfulness to the eye of the beholder. But it's not easy to step along briskly and lightly when one's pedal extremities are as full of aches and pains as a college freshman's head after his first drunk. And feet are prone to be more troublesome in summer than at any other time of the year. For the heat tends to increase the activities of the perspiratory glands of the feet, and often even cause the feet to swell.

To prevent foot discomfort during the summer months, absolute cleanliness is essential. The feet should be thoroughly scrubbed morning and night, and fresh, clean stockings should be donned at least once every day. If the feet perspire excessively, a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water may be used. This solution should be applied for three nights and then used once a week.

There are so many excellent foot powders on the market that I wonder that more men and women do not acquire the habit of using one of them. Dusting a bit of good foot powder into the shoes will oftentimes keep the feet from swelling and prevent too much moisture of the skin.

Stockings can be very uncomfortable if they do not fit correctly. Those that are too short will cramp the toes, and may even cause bunions. And stockings that are too large and wrinkle under the feet can cause the most painful of foot disorders. Stockings should fit correctly, and should always be loosened at the toes before the feet are thrust into the shoes.

The best remedy for tired, aching feet is to soak them in a tub-ful of warm water in which a cupful of epsom salts has been dissolved. After the soaking, cold water should be sprayed or run over the feet. This procedure will take the soreness from your aching tootsies, and will have a most soothing effect on them.

ANSWER TO QUERIES

Eyebrows
A. E. W.: Why not go to a reliable shop and have your brows shaped by an expert? You should be able to keep them looking neat after that.

Light Hair
G. M.: The special shampoo and rinse described in my "Beauty Culture" booklet will indeed help to keep your hair light. The process is too long to print here, unfortunately.

Cocoa Butter
Marry K.: Cocoa butter does not cause the appearance of pimples on the face. These blemishes usually have their beginnings in the condition of the blood.

Powder Base
G. H.: Cleansing cream tends to soften the skin and open the pores. I'd suggest that you use a mild astringent to close the pores, before you apply your make-up.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs" two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

MENU HINT

Honeydew Balls (served with cracked ice)

Chicken Pie Creamed New Peas

Pineapple and Pear Salad in a green gelatin, topped with Philadelphia Cream Cheese and Mayonnaise)

Angel Food Cake Dessert

Coffee

Green and White Mints

This is a luncheon menu for 16 guests. The color scheme is green and white. If you have an iceless refrigerator you can freeze a green grape in each ice cube to carry out the color scheme.

Today's Recipes

Chicken Pie—This is simply the cut-up chicken in a thin gravy, either white sauce or slightly thickened chicken gravy, combined with cubed potatoes and baked with a rich biscuit crust on top.

Angel Food Cake Dessert—Plain angel cake is topped with green and white ice cream.

Suggestions

Dustcloth for Porch
A dustcloth should be kept on every porch to prevent soil getting on ladies' summer dresses and also on men's light trousers. A smart handkerchief bag on a ribbon may be thumb-tacked on the back of a cedar chair, in which each morning there is placed several clean white dustcloths which are always at hand to use for this purpose.

Discarded Tub Dresses
Cut off upper part of one-piece washable dresses just below the arm holes, stitch or baste across the top of what remains, and you have a slip or bag into which you may place folded quilts, comforts, blankets, etc., when storing away for the summer. Whether on wardrobe shelves or in boxes, this covering cannot slip off, and prevents streaks from air and dust. Or, if you prefer, by sewing up neck and sleeves, they make splendid bags for dropping over dusty coats and gowns on hangers in the wardrobe, protecting from air and dust.

SHELL MIAMISBURG HURLERS FROM HILL UNDER HIT BARRAGE

Bat Around Twice To Score Twelve Runs
In Second

Upon our word, those surprising Xenia Merchants are an aggregation of cluffers.

What with the heat, it was hardly to be expected they would have the energy to get out and run the bases with the utter abandon they displayed Sunday afternoon in swamping an inferior Miamisburg baseball nine by the remarkable count of 27 to 5 at Washington Park.

But it seems that the hotter it is the better Jess Chambliss' crew likes it, for the lads cuffed the ball plenty and gave a great exhibition of high powered scoring in what was ostensibly a baseball game.

Lambasting twenty-six hits, of which quite a few were for extra bases, the Merchants had the Burgers shouting "Kamerad," after the good old German style, before the contest, if it may be termed such, was less than two innings old.

Both teams started out on an even basis, that is, each side had the same amount of batting and fielding practice; but when the game actually started, this spirit of equality ended then and there. True the visiting nine obtained a temporary advantage by grinding out two runs in the first stanza on an error and two doubles, but this rally did not hold a candle to the one the Merchants staged in the second inning.

In the second, the Xenia nine batted entirely around twice and accumulated the almost unbelievable total of twelve runs. The Merchants made an even dozen hits, including two triples, and Miller, starting Burger hurler, was derided in favor of McElfresh who was less effective, if possible, than his predecessors.

Not content with this twelve-run spurge, the Merchants showed no mercy. They tallied three more in the fourth, two in the fifth, four in the sixth and a final gesture, added six lucious markers in the eighth. Heavenly days. What a rebellion.

All of the Merchant players participated in the big slugfest. There were no exceptions. Each one hit safely at least twice, Ruse and Ankeney each getting four blows. All the boys excepting Burnbaugh and Johnson each pilfered one or more bases to boot. The Xenia team had nine thefts to its credit. At that, there was a Burger batter who outshone all of the Merchants. Waymer, first baseman, had thirteen putouts, including many unassisted, and at bat he had a perfect average. He hit a double and three singles scored three runs and stole two bases. He was upset on the wrong team that was all.

Jasper Ankeney in person pitched most of the game for Xenia, while Marshall, center fielder, was called in to hurl the last several rounds, which he did in good style. The Burgers got ten hits, but what of it.

"Our last and very sincere wish is that our visitors enjoyed being with us as much as we enjoyed having them."

Yours for bigger and better chicken sandwiches.

"Atlas" Smith.

The above effusion by "Atlas," better late than never, coming on the last day of our responsibility for the task of fishing up this daily boloney, is most welcome and practically guarantees us a reader for Monday evening since "Atlas" will be sure to read his own stuff.

By the time this column has expressed its printer's ink, Phil Frame, regular motorman of this department, will be back on the job (let us pray) and life once more will have returned to as near a semblance of normalcy as the life of a newspaper man ever gets.

This columnist is pleased that you have borne with him during the last two weeks, realizing, perhaps, that it is difficult to find grist for this mill after being out of touch with sport writing for some time.

During the period of substitution there was little excitement in the local sport world, unless the invasion of the Hollywood girls' team would be considered a sport event of unusual moment. The Downtown Country Club, minus the services of Frame and "Skip" Finlay, who vacationed with him, dropped out of a tie for first place, with the Langs in the National League during that period, and is now in second place. Leadership in the American League was unchanged.

FROM HEARSE TO PLANE

CHEYBOYGAN, Mich.—A brief sensation was created here when a hearse, with a fire engine clearing the way, sped to the local airport. There two men alighted, to dash to an airplane and speed aloft into the clouds. The Cheyboygan natives were puzzled until it was explained that Major Floyd Evans, director of the Michigan State Board of Aeronautics, had bargained with Ceryle Kimberly, local undertaker, for a ride in a hearse the price to be a ride in the major's airplane.

TO CUT MORTGAGE COSTS

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Governor Wilbur L. Cross is seeking lower rates of interest on mortgages. He has arranged with his banking commissioner George J. Bassett, also a New Havener, to call a conference of bankers and investment men in mid-July to see what they can do about the matter. Mayor George A. Quigley, of New Britain, started the governor on the problem.

SCHEDULE ENTERS PERIOD OF CRUCIAL GAMES THIS WEEK

Leadership in the National and American Softball Leagues remains unchanged after another week of play but with the teams aligned in such a way that anything might happen.

The Langs Chevrolet, last year's city champions, are holding a one-game lead in the National League and will not go any lower than that for a while, at least.

The Langs will get a supreme test Monday evening when they meet the Downtown Country Club, league second-placers in the first game of the fourth and final round of play in the National loop.

If the leaders win, they will be two full games in front of the pack and very likely to finish that way at the end of the season. If the Downtowners win, they will go into a tie for first place with the Langs and will still have a chance to beat them out on the season.

Each team in the circuit has about five more games to play and it is unlikely that any team besides the Downtowners can win enough of those games to displace the league leaders before the season ends. The Downtowners will finish their schedule, August 27, against the Criterion, while the Langs will wind up August 28 with the Red Wings, now third placers in the loop.

During the past week Central High displaced the Krippendorff-Dittman team, last year's American League champs, from second place in that circuit while the All Stars are holding a full game lead in first place. The All Stars meet the shoemakers Thursday in what may be a crucial game as this circuit winds up August 26 and this will be the last meeting of these teams. The All Stars will play Central High, present second-placers, August 11, in another important game.

The American League opens its sixth and final round of play Tuesday evening when Central High meets St. Bridg and, from all prospects should gain a half game on the league leaders.

EXONERATE XENIAN AFTER AUTO KILLS MAN SUNDAY NIGHT

Dr. William J. Madison, colored, 420 E. Market St., dentist, was exonerated by authorities of blame in connection with the death of a man about 38 years of age, who was injured fatally when struck by the Xenian's auto near Fayetteville, in Brown County early Sunday night.

Dr. Madison, who communicated details of the accident to Sheriff John Baughn upon his return to this city, said the man, a Fayetteville butcher, stepped from behind a parked auto along the highway and walked directly in the path of his car.

The Fayetteville man and a companion had parked their auto along the road and both men started across the pike. The former looked neither to the right nor left and Dr. Madison's machine, also occupied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lane, E. Church St., was upon him too suddenly for the driver to swerve out of the way.

The fatally injured man died a short time afterward. The accident was pronounced unavoidable by eye-witnesses and Dr. Madison was released after questioning. He and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Lane were returning to Xenia after motoring through the southern part of Ohio and northern Kentucky.

LEGION WILL HELP MOVE PATIENTS TO NEW HOME HOSPITAL

Members of Foody Post, American Legion, will go to Dayton Tuesday morning to assist in removing veterans from the old hospital at the National Military Home to the new hospital.

Home officials appealed to the Legion in the third district to move the ill and crippled men after the new hospital appropriation left nothing to finance transfer of the patients to the new structure.

The work will be undertaken for three days, starting Tuesday. Foody Post members will meet at post hall at 8 o'clock to go to the hospital and those with autos are asked to bring them to assist in transferring patients who are partly able to help themselves.

Amblances for use of the post have been donated by R. M. Neel, J. H. Whitmer and J. H. Nagley, undertakers, and the Neel and Whitmer amblances will be taken to Dayton Tuesday. Arrangements have been made so that the use of these cars will not cripple ambulance facilities in Xenia.

TEMPERATURE HITS 95 HERE ON SUNDAY

Well, it was pretty hot again Sunday and Monday morning, but the monotony was broken early Monday afternoon by a long waited shower, drenching but all too brief in duration to accomplish the purpose of lowering temperatures to any degree. It was not as warm Sunday, however, as most people thought, the official maximum temperature being 95 degrees, a mark to which Xenians have grown accustomed during the last week or two. The prediction for Tuesday is "fair weather," with no mention made of the possibility of further showers.

LEAVES FOR CAMP

Company I, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, recruited almost to its full peacetime strength by an eleven-hour campaign for temporary enlistments, went to Camp Perry, O. Sunday for the annual two-week training period. The Xenia guard unit was in charge of Capt. Harold L. Hays, new commander.

TAX PAYING TIME BRINGS BUSY DAY

The extra twelve-day emergency extension authorized by County Commissioners for the payment of the June installment of the last half of 1930 taxes ended Saturday, and on this last day when payments could be made without delinquency, the usual large number of tardy taxpayers flocked to the county treasurer's office. Officials of the office declined to venture an estimate, however, as to whether the collection was above or below normal and whether the delinquent list will be smaller than usual.

EAST END NEWS

Mrs. Goldie Lofton, and daughter Joan, Dayton, were week end guests of Mrs. Lofton's sister, Mrs. Cecil Baker, 213 S. Columbus St. The Sims reunion will be held Sunday at the home of William Sims, Morrow, O.

ONE-LEGGED PARACHUTER

CLEVELAND—Ted Sweet, one-legged parachute jumper of Grand Lodge, Michigan, was the first person to file an entry in the parachute event of the National Air Races to be held here August 29 to Sept. 7. It was announced by officials of the races. Sweet, despite the loss of his limb, has been granted a permit to jump by the Department of Commerce and uses two chutes, one of his own design, and a second one, as an emergency "chute" for safety.

WATER RUNS OLD MILL

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 3.—Softly and slickly turns the giant wheel of Old Mill, an institution that has been in existence here since 1642, and is now a city museum devoted to colonial things. Visitors by the score throng the mill all through the summer. Many times a day curious persons seek out the custodian of Old Mill and ask to be shown the motor. For they won't believe the wheel runs by water alone—until they are shown it for a fact.

TOLL INCREASING

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 3.—Death toll in the disastrous fire which swept the Little Sisters of the Poor Home on July 24 rose to forty-six today with the death of Mrs. Hanna O'Leary, 85.

SPYING ON SPORTS BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor
Cameback? Oh, No!
For heavies, lighties, middies, too, The Gob's an easy dish, But what is puzzling me and you Is if he's ham or fish.

NOW THAT THE Chicago White Sox have dug in, apparently for the summer, in the eight game trenches, comes again that ancient query from the letter-writing fan:

"Why don't the Sox get rid of old Red Faber? He's won only three games. He's all washed up." Oh, Yeah? Well, the Sox hold on to Faber for two reasons. No. 1, sentiment. No. 2, Red can still win some ball games. Maybe that No. 2 reason should be placed first, because the Sox ownership has never been notorious for doing things on a sentimental slant.

Anyway, Faber stuck with the club and the fans when the infamous "Black Sox" scandal was brewing back in 1919. That's undoubtedly partially the reason there never is any rumors or reports that Red is to be traded or sold or waived down the river.

FABER'S WON three ball games so far this season and while three victories are just a week-end's work for clubs like the A's, the Senators and Cardinals, it's par for Chicago hurlers this season—so far.

Old Urban C. has never been one of those elbowers who back in the limelight of popular acclaim. However, he's averaged fourteen wins a year in seventeen seasons' toil for the "White Sox" and that's a pretty swell record for any one.

Strangely enough, Faber has been just about as good a tosser ever with a weak club at his back as he was when he had the world champions giving him a lift. From 1914, when he joined the Sox, to 1920, the last year of the mighty Chicago pennant combine, Red turned in 103 wins—or fourteen a season. In the ten seasons since the breakup of the Chicago club which followed revelation of world series crookedness Faber has won 134 contests (not counting this season's three) for a yearly average of 13½.

That average with a chronic flop like the Sox or the last ten years would do justice to a Walter Johnson.

THINGS COULD be worse. Imagine being a National League umpire and reading in the paper that Mickey Walker has signed as an assistant manager to John McGraw.

Among the jobs that nobody wants—despite the depression—is that of trying to sell world series tickets in Cincinnati.

An old-timer is a fellow who can remember when the defeat of a United States Davis cup team was news. Now it's a habit. If you see anyone weeping over it, it won't be William Tatem Tilden.

The difference between Jack Sharkey and everybody else is that now even his best friends are telling him . . .

Following their recent act with the Pirates, the Brooklyn Robins have come to the conclusion that the quickest route to the National League pennant is a detour around Pittsburgh.

SCOTT'S TEAM WINS FROM WILMINGTON

Scott's Ice Creamers trimmed the Wilmington Eagles by the score of 5 to 2 in a softball tilt on the Mulberry St. diamond here Sunday afternoon. William Scott, local pitcher, permitted the Quakers a bare four hits, while his mates obtained eleven, one a homer, off Floyd, Eagles hurler. Scott's will play another Wilmington team in the latter's diamond Monday night and again on the local diamond Tuesday night.

PLAN EXTRA GAME

Following the scheduled National League game between the Lang Chevrolet and the Downtowners at Cox Field Monday night, another softball game, or as much of a game as possible will be played between Central High and the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadets. Central has met the Home team twice, winning one game and losing one, and this will be the "rubber" contest. Manager Glenn Patterson urges all Central players to report in uniform.

FLYER KILLED IN AIR CRASH

OSCONDA, Mich., Aug. 3.—One army flyer was killed and another was seriously injured today when an observation airplane from Scott Field, Danville, Illinois, crashed to the ground from a height of 300 feet at the local airport.

Corporal John W. Gibson, the observer, met death and the pilot, a Lieutenant Grant, was seriously hurt.

An observation ship from Selfridge Field, Michigan was dispatched here to return the body and the injured man.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The stock market found the going on the upside decidedly to its liking in a continuation of quiet trading activity today, and leading stocks were able to chalk up fairly good sized price gains without undue difficulty.

The failure of professionals to resume selling in early dealings influenced considerable short covering by benchish traders, with improvement first visible in the run of recently depressed pivotal favorites, and then spreading to take in virtually all sections of the market, including the rails.

CUT ROSES
Written for Central Press
By DR. KARL F. KELLERMAN
Bureau of Plant Industry
U. S. Department of Agriculture

CUT ROSES have a definite place in the flower parade that no other flower can fill, and no experienced gardener leaves such a conspicuous gap.

Oldest and hardest of the roses suitable for cutting is the Hybrid Remontant, or Hybrid Perpetual. Although it produces well as a type, it is not so continuous a bloomer as some others, horticulturists of the Bureau of Plant Industry point out. Frau Karl Druschki, Countess of Rosebery, Oakmont, Pa., Eugene Parent and Baroness Rothschild are good bloomers. General Jacqueminot and Paul Neyron are also satisfactory, but less productive. American Beauty is a poor bloomer out of doors.

Less hardy are the tea roses. As a rule they are weak growers, although they bloom more freely than the Hybrid Perpetuals. The Hybrid Teas are hardy enough over much of the eastern and central United States. They are free bloomers during most of the summer. Radiance, Red Radiance, several kinds of Killarneya, and Gruss an Teplitz are very satisfactory.

The Baby Rambler makes a good continuous show of clustered blooms. Notable among these are Triomphe Orleansais, Baby Rambler, Mme. Cecile Brunner and Marie Pavle.

The modern garden is just as well off without such old-time favorites as moss roses and the old hundred leaf roses. They bloom only once and their foliage falls easy prey to disease.

RECEIPTS GAIN

A gain of $260.75 in receipts at the Xenia Post Office in July as compared with the same month a year ago is noted in the monthly financial statement of Postmaster C. S. Fraser. Postal receipts in July, 1931 amounted to $3,883.07, and during the corresponding month in 1930 the revenue totalled $3,622.32, the report shows.

SMALL CHECKER BOARD CROOKSVILLE, O., Aug. 3.—Probably the smallest player checker board in the state is now in use by checker fanciers at the J. B. Carsons barber shop here. The actual playing dimensions of the board are five inches and the checkers in use are much smaller than a dime. However the tiny board is well mounted and well-made and on a board to be held on the knees of the players. Checker devotees find much sport pushing the "men" over the squares, each of which can be hidden with the end of the line.

"BUT . . . BUT he may—" Ann began frantically, as Lady Mooring sought to detain her.

"Nothing can happen to him. He knows I'm with you. And Hilary, his half-brother, is with him."

"Roy has been my savior," Lady Mooring went on. "I told him about the Lamovits. He told me to leave things to him and not worry. A fortnight later he rang me up to say he had the letters and an emerald of mine that I had been forced to give them."

"I remember I saw it. That night I tried to murder him, when he stayed at my flat."

Lady Mooring smiled.

"It was, my dear, and the next time I met Roy he could talk of nothing but Ann Carmichael. And I, too, was a little jealous. It seemed I had found Lee's son only to have him snatched from me by some other woman."

To her lips Ann lifted the slim fingers holding hers.

"You know I'm not jealous of you now. It was only that . . . that I didn't understand. You can always have your share of Roy. You must come and stay with us in New York so that you can be with him without people talking."

Tenderly Lady Mooring patted the young face beside her.

"Roy was right when he said you were kind and generous."

Then the elder woman continued her story.

"Soon after Roy got those letters, Amos Lamovit rang up and said Lee Lawson was still alive, that he was going to him to get further evidence against me. It seemed as if the world had come to an end. I went straight to Roy."

Into the girl's mind there flashed the episode of the midnight visit to the Savoy.

"I couldn't believe it," Lady Mooring went on. "If it were true it meant my second marriage was illegal, my three younger sons illegitimate. Roy tried to comfort me. He said it was a put up thing. That there wasn't a word of truth in it. But when I told him Lee's body had never been found, I knew he began to wonder. He said he would investigate the matter. I made him promise that if he heard anything to tell me the truth. I could stand no more deception. Well, Ann, you know most of the rest."

There was another pause. Like stifled moans, the sob of the sea came in at the open window. When the countess started talking again her voice was a dreary monotone.

"The moment I heard Lee was alive, that he had sacrificed himself in order to screen me, I determined to give up everything, to sacrifice everybody but Roy and Lee. To go back to my first husband. But my darling Lee determined otherwise. He died as he had lived, screening me. When Roy reached his father, Lee denied him, refusing to admit he was Lee Lawson. But his actions belied him. For he killed the men who had made my life a purgatory. Drove all four of them and himself into one of the craters in Hawaii."

Again Lady Mooring paused, the pain in her dark eyes deepening.

"I only reached Honolulu yesterday," she went on at a moment later. "And tomorrow I had intended to go to Lee. Then I heard Roy was back and I went straight to him. He . . . he told me what had happened and tried to comfort me, telling me his father had acted for the best. That I couldn't have condemned and deserted my three innocent boys. Afterwards Hilary went to Roy, to do what he called 'have it out' about the title. But Roy refused to take it. He says things must go on as they are, that his father's sacrifice must not be in vain. He pointed out to Hilary that there is not a bit of evidence to support his, Roy's claim, assuming he wanted to make one. And that if Hilary brought the matter up he would only be thought a lunatic and cause still more suffering and scandal. Like Lee, Roy is sacrificing himself to save me. Now, Ann, you have the whole story. You can disagree me if you wish. You can declare my three younger sons illegitimate. You can break the heart of the kind, just man who is their father. But Roy shall not suffer any more through me."

Ann dropped on her knees beside the tortured woman.

"I'd rather die than say a word," she whispered. "Why didn't Roy tell me? Why didn't he trust me from the first?"

"My dear, he was too loyal. Too afraid for me."

Lady Mooring drew Ann closer and kissed her. . . .

By the sea wall, in the thin blue light of many stars, two young men were standing. All at once a light step sent their gaze into the shadows screening the garden. A moment later a girl loomed up, coming swiftly in their direction.

Roy made as if to go forward, but Hilary stopped him.

"Let me have a word with her first, old horse, then I'll leave you to it."

Midway in her homing flight Lord Hilary Fenton stopped her.

"So you're Ann Carmichael."

"Yes," she said, in a breathless fashion.

She tried to push past him, to reach the boy by the sea wall, but he barred her way.

"You'll find your ring and bag on the wall. I retrieved them when I brought old Roy out here to commune with the stars. And if you're not decent to him, now and always, I shall wring your neck, so don't you forget it."

The Theater

That screen classic, "The Miracle Man," will be made into a talkie with George Bancroft playing the Thomas Meighan silent film role of the confidence man.

This is the most exciting announcement from Hollywood for several months. "The Miracle Man" was one of the greatest popular successes of its day and it made the screen reputations of Thomas Meighan, Betty Compson and the late Lon Chaney.

Paramount, in buying the dialogue rights, undoubtedly has turned a neat piece of business for itself. And Mr. Bancroft gets a great role handed to him on a silver platter.

Several days ago this column inadvertently carried the statement that Constance Bennett would appear at the Orpheum soon in "Born to Love." No correction was published later in the belief that the mistake would not be noticed. But it was. Of course the Bennett starring vehicle coming here is "Born to Love."

Viola Dana was in Hollywood the other day for a visit with her sister, Shirley Mason (Mrs. Sidney Lanfield). She had intended to remain for the blessed event at the Lanfield home, but got homesick and returned to Colorado Springs, where she has made her home since her marriage to Jimmie Thompson, the golf pro.

ver platter. While the deal still is too fresh for a complete cast to be announced, Irving Pichel has been selected to re-create the Lon Chaney part of the fake cripple.

The girl and the blind healer, whose simple faith eventually converts the racketeers, are yet to be chosen. Needless to say, there will be a wild scramble for the parts.

George Loane Tucker never equalled the heights he reached in the direction of the original silent version and Frank L. Packard, in writing it, reached his peak, too. The scenarist and director appointed to succeed them, face a heavy responsibility.

Paramount claims that Irving Pichel is on his way to stardom. The former Civic and Little Theater actor not only gets "The Miracle Man" role but will support Talullah Bankhead in a modern version of "The Cheat." Strange how the old hits are coming back to the talkie screen. Originally Fannie Ward and Sessue Hayakawa played in this film. The new version will not have an Oriental hero.

Bancroft, who was originally announced for the starring role in "Through the Window," the mystery melodrama purchased by Paramount from Martin Plavin and Joe

U. S. DIRIGIBLE AKRON WILL BE CHRISTENED NEXT SATURDAY

AKRON, O., Aug. 3.—One hundred thousand or more persons from every walk of life and from every section of the nation will gather here next Saturday, to witness the anti-climax of Akron's many-phased summer aviation program—the formal christening of the world's largest dirigible, the U. S. Akron.

From the Atlantic ocean to the Pacific and from Canada to Mexico, travelers are expected to trek toward this rubber metropolis all week by practically every means of transportation.

On Saturday, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, will officially name the new air Leviathan as it is cut free from its moorings inside the mammoth Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp. hangar at Municipal airport. The monster craft will not leave its dock but will float free, under its own power for the first time.

A flock of snow-white pigeons, symbolic of this peace-time ship, will be released by the first lady of the land as she christens the craft the "United States Airship Akron." Release of the pigeons will replace the customary breaking of a bottle of liquid air on the main cabin.

Squadrons of Army, Marine and Navy airplanes will pay tribute to this newest addition to the American Navy just before the christening ceremonies. Flying in formation, twenty army ships from Wright Field at Dayton, Ohio, will dip in salute over the huge hangar, welcoming the new craft on behalf of the Army.

Nine planes from the Marine field at Quantico, Va., together with a squadron of nine other planes from the Anacostia, Md., naval base will follow the airmen from the army and pay their tribute to the dirigible in turn.

During the christening proper, all of these planes, will be on the ground at the airport. They will leave the city shortly after the ceremonies are completed.

A luncheon for Mrs. Hoover is to be held in Goodyear Hall before the ceremonies begin.

The special train which will bring the first lady and a large delegation of official Washington probably will arrive in Akron some time during the morning. According to present plans, the special train will return Saturday night.

Despite the undoubted importance of this gala event, the christening ceremonies to members of the Akron's crew and to residents of the city will be only an anti-climax in the history of the ship's construction.

The climax will come probably two or three weeks later when the largest lighter-than-air craft ever built by man is brought from its dock and takes off on its maiden flight.

There will be seven of these test flights. Each will be held to test some specific part of the new airship. Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, skipper of the Akron, expects to complete his test flights within a month after the christening.

Sometime after the christening and before the first test flight, the Navy dirigible Los Angeles, third largest dirigible in the world, will visit Akron. This visit will give residents of Akron and visitors an opportunity to determine the size of the Akron by actual comparison.

The Los Angeles is 655 feet in length, the Akron 755. The new dirigible actually will bulk two and a half times as large as the Los Angeles. The Akron will carry 91 tons; the Los Angeles carries 30 tons. Only the Graf Zeppelin among crafts now flying is larger than the Los Angeles and the German craft will be relegated to second place when the Akron takes the air.

Spectators at the christening will be allowed to overflow the entire airport grounds and even inside the hangar within a limited space, officials have announced. Preparations are being made to handle the largest crowd in the history of the airport.

When the giant ship takes off for its test flights, however, spectators will be barred from the field. A gigantic fence, believed to be the longest ever built in Ohio, is now under construction around the entire landing field. The fence will be made of wire to allow the spectators an opportunity to see everything that is going on inside the fence.

Laura Ingalls, Tiny, but Nerry, Is Out to Be First of Sex to Fly Ocean

One-Hundred-Pound Aviatrix, Who Deserted Footlights for Cockpit, and Holds Many of the Most Cherished Records for Flying, Gives Destination, "Le Bourget."

Known as the tiniest aviatrix in the world, Laura Ingalls, diminutive 100-pound pilot, has set a task for herself which bears no relation to the word little or any of its synonyms. For whatever this brown-haired, comely girl from St. Louis lacks in mere weight, she makes up in nerve, as her ambition to be the first woman to fly the Atlantic solo conclusively proves. Carefully laying her plans in a manner which reminds one of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Miss Ingalls, quiet and retiring, may hop off suddenly before one realizes it and set her powerful Lockheed Air Express down in Paris in a manner strikingly similar to that used by Lindy. So intent is Laura on being the first of her sex to fly from New York to Paris all alone that she has boldly written her destination as Le Bourget whenever she has been called upon recently to name her next stop. Not content with holding various stunt and long distance records for both men and women fliers, Miss Ingalls, who deserted the stage for the cockpit, is preparing at New York for the greatest adventure of her life.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—She may be tiny, but she's got big ideas. And bigness of a sort seems so incongruous with Laura Ingalls, who can only cajole the scales into crediting her with 100 pounds! But what diminutive Laura lacks in mere weight, she makes up with spunk. And with a generous helping of that all-important quality for trans-Atlantic fliers, Miss Ingalls has high hopes of being the first of her sex to fly solo from New York to Paris.

So intent is the little bundle of femininity upon winging herself over the treacherous Atlantic to fame and fortune that she has boldly written her destination as Le Bourget, famous airport at Paris, whenever she has been called upon to name her next stop.

The possibility of Laura "doing a Lindbergh" is becoming more evident as her plans progress for the epochal flight. Like the Flying Colonel, whom she is trying to emulate, she arrived in New York from the West Coast. Like him, too, she has remained almost secretive about her preparations for the great adventure. Soon after her arrival at Floyd Bennett Airport, New York, Miss Ingalls had her powerful Lockheed Air Express, with its 450 horse power motor, moved to the comparative solitude of a field at Farmingdale, L. I., so that she might test her plane and complete her plans unmolested.

Free of all fanfare, this retiring 25-year-old and comely aviatrix may be setting the world agog at any moment by her take-off and perhaps successful solo hop to Paris. But there isn't going to be any horn tooting in advance. Plenty of time for that if she fulfills her ambition, says Laura, with a cool determination that spells victory for the little, but nerry, record-holding girl pilot.

Miss Ingalls tread the unusual path from footlights to the more material life of aviation to gain her objective of being a full-fledged pilot. Apparently Laura has long been in the habit of doing everything she tackles well, for the Actors' Guild, with whom she played on Broadway, testifies to her ability as an actress. Later she became a vaudeville dancer.

Perhaps it was because of her early theatrical career and because she is small and very feminine that other fliers were reluctant at first to accord her a chance to survive the pitfalls of aviation. It wasn't long, however, until she won her transport pilot's license at twenty-five—the fifteenth woman in this country to gain that coveted bit of fame—and began to show both men and women fliers her capabilities. She has been flying four years now, having taken her initial training in the sky at Roosevelt Field, N. Y. Later she went to St. Louis, her native city, to complete her course in piloting.

Immediately upon her graduation, Miss Ingalls set as her goal a demonstration to the world that women could be as expert in the air as men. Quietly she began to prepare herself for some record-breaking stunts.

Her first was to establish a record of 244 consecutive loops, shattering all previous records for her sex. Last year, Laura bettered her own loops, coming down with 980 to her credit. A few weeks later, she again crashed into the front pages of the world with the world's record for barrel rolls—714. This was 297 more than the record of Dale Jackson, male record holder, and 644 more than any other woman had ever made.

So much for stunt flying. The brown-haired Laura Ingalls was then ready for some long-distance work—all 100 pounds of her. Last October she established a new trans-continental record for women—in slightly more than twenty-three hours of flying time she hopped from New York to Los Angeles.

Since that enviable feat, she's been studying navigation, flying blind and generally developing the nerves that will enable her to try the great adventure of flying the Atlantic.

For her heroic dash over the heaving mass of water which has claimed so many victims, the little St. Louis girl will wear her usual flying garb—a riding outfit topped by a heavy leather jacket. While Laura is not letting the world in on her advance preparations to be the first woman to fly the ocean all alone, that's her business—now. However, if she makes her objective, her business will be the world's when it takes the tiny aviatrix to its heart.

FAIR PATRONS WILL SEE AUTOGIRO GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

The Greene County Fair Board announced Monday that arrangements have been completed for a flying exhibition at the fair grounds Friday afternoon, August 7, of the first commercial autogiro owned in the state.

The plane will be piloted by Mrs. Blanche Wilcox Noyes, nationally known aviatrix, who is expected to make three take-offs from the infield of the race course.

The Standard Oil Co., owner of the ship and sponsor of its tour, calls it the Sohlogiro. The plane has demonstrated its ability to safely fly at the low speed of twenty miles an hour, and even to be brought to a momentary stop in mid-air. It can land and take-off on a large lawn. In mid-air, if its engine should fail, it settles safely back to earth in a practically vertical descent more slowly than a falling parachute.

Mrs. Noyes will arrive at the landing field at 1 p. m. Friday.

BURGLARS RECEIVE SLIGHT REWARD FOR TROUBLE SATURDAY

Burglars who entered the office of a grain elevator and attempted to break into the office of a lumber company in Yellow Springs Saturday night were not well repaid for their efforts.

After cutting the glass in a door to enter the office of the Welsh Grain Co. at Xenia Ave., and Dayton St., the thieves opened an unlocked safe and stole a pocketbook containing notes and checks. No money was inside. The drawer of a cash register was found standing open and an envelope containing a dollar had been ignored.

The missing pocketbook was later found near the Yellow Springs Lumber Co., Cliff St., which was also visited by burglars. The thieves broke the glass in a window but the noise aroused residents living nearby and the thieves fled without making an entrance. Sheriff John Baughn and Deputy Walton Spahr investigated.

GARDEN FLOWER TESTS TO BE INSPECTED ON ORCHARD DAY

The tests on garden flowers, conducted by W. W. Wiggins of the Department of Horticulture at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, will be available for inspection and will be explained to those interested on the annual Orchard Day to be held at Wooster on August 21.

Problems in fertility, the value of organic matter in the soil, the value of liming soils, some variety testing, and general cultural practices on the commonly grown outdoor flowers have been under observation for the last four years. Many interesting and helpful results have been secured both for the amateur and commercial grower of flowers. The flower plots make a pleasant place for the ladies to spend some of the time while the men are viewing the fruit and vegetable work.

AUTOISTS ABANDON AUTO BEFORE TRAIN WRECKS CAR SUNDAY

After their coupe had stalled between parallel tracks, four Cincinnati residents, two men and two women, jumped from the car and watched it demolished by a fast Pennsylvania passenger train at a crossing east of Cedarville between Cedarville and Selma about 4 o'clock Saturday morning.

The four people were on their way to Cleveland and, failing to negotiate a sharp turn in the highway at the crossing, the machine lurched up the right-of-way between the two main tracks. Observing the train bearing down upon them, the occupants hastily leaped from the auto. The train, headed toward Xenia, struck and wrecked the car.

The train did not stop immediately, members of the train crew being unaware of the mishap. Nearing the Jasper Pike crossing at the edge of the Xenia corporation line, it was discovered the steps of the locomotive were down, after which the train was backed up for a considerable distance while the crew scanned the right-of-way in search of wreckage. The four Cincinnati residents were driven to Xenia by Edgar Little, farmer living near the crossing. Their names were not learned.

WAIVES LIMIT

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Aug. 3.—For good cause shown, Probate Judge J. D. Davis exercised his right to waive the time limit under the new marriage law and permitted a marriage license to be issued to D. E. Palmer, 53, of Baltimore, and Harriet May McCall, 55 of McKinney, recently.
